Voices in the Code David G. Robinson, 2022-09-08 Algorithms rules written into software shape key moments in our lives from who gets hired or admitted to a top public school to who should go to jail or receive scarce public benefits Such decisions are both technical and moral Today the logic of high stakes software is rarely open to scrutiny and central moral questions are often left for the technical experts to answer Policymakers and scholars are seeking better ways to share the moral decisionmaking within high stakes software exploring ideas like public participation transparency forecasting and algorithmic audits But there are few real examples of those techniques in use In Voices in the Code scholar David G Robinson tells the story of how one community built a life and death algorithm in an inclusive accountable way Between 2004 and 2014 a diverse group of patients surgeons clinicians data scientists public officials and advocates collaborated and compromised to build a new kidney transplant matching algorithm a system to offer donated kidneys to particular patients from the U S national waiting list Drawing on interviews with key stakeholders unpublished archives and a wide scholarly literature Robinson shows how this new Kidney Allocation System emerged and evolved over time as participants gradually built a shared understanding both of what was possible and of what would be fair Robinson finds much to criticize but also much to admire in this story It ultimately illustrates both the promise and the limits of participation transparency forecasting and auditing of high stakes software The book's final chapter draws out lessons for the broader struggle to build technology in a democratic and accountable way
