Practical Applications Of Gis For Archaeologists A Predictive Modeling Kit:

Practical Applications of GIS for Archaeologists Konnie L. Wescott, R. Joe Brandon, 2003-09-02 The use of GIS is the most powerful technology introduced to archaeology since the introduction of carbon 14 dating The most widespread use of this technology has been for the prediction of archaeological site locations This book focuses on the use of GIS for archaeological predictive modeling The contributors include internationally recognized researchers who have been at the forefront of this revolutionary integration of GIS and archaeology as well as first generation researchers who have begun to critically apply this new technology and explore its theoretical implications Beyond the Map Gary R. Lock, 2000 This set of papers by European and North American archaeologists explore the interface between new spatial technologies and areas of theoretical concern in spatial archaeology Differing aspects of landscape such as vision perception and movement are explored through a series of case studies that focus on how spatial technologies can influence archaeological interpretation and to what extent these new technologies can be manipulated to take us beyond 2 dimensional maps Individual site based analyses and new applications of predictive modelling are also presented and assessed together with the wider questions of spatial technologies within heritage management archaeological community providing it with an exciting new research method This clearly written but rigorous book provides a comprehensive guide to that use Topics covered include the theoretical context and the basics of GIS data acquisition including database design interpolation of elevation models exploratory data analysis including spatial queries statistical spatial analysis map algebra spatial operations including the calculation of slope and aspect filtering and erosion modeling methods for analysing regions visibility analysis network analysis including hydrological modeling the production of high quality output for paper and electronic publication and the use and production of metadata Offering an extensive range of archaeological examples it is an invaluable source of practical information for all archaeologists whether engaged in cultural resource management or academic research This is essential reading for both the novice and the advanced user The

Cultural Landscape & Heritage Paradox Tom Bloemers, Henk Kars, Arnold Van der Valk, 2010 The basic problem is to what extent we can know past and mainly invisible landscapes and how we can use this still hidden knowledge for actual sustainable management of landscape s cultural and historical values It has also been acknowledged that heritage management is increasingly about the management of future change rather than simply protection This presents us with a paradox to preserve our historic environment we have to collaborate with those who wish to transform it and in order to apply our expert knowledge we have to make it suitable for policy and society The answer presented by the Protection and Development of the Dutch Archaeological Historical Landscape programme pdl bbo is an integrative landscape approach which applies inter and transdisciplinarity establishing links between archaeological historical heritage and planning and between research and policy Predictive Modeling and the Ecology of Hunter-gatherers of the Boreal Forest of

Manitoba David Ebert, 2004 Archaeological predictive modelling Ebert argues has stagnated in recent years with its proponents resisting the temptation to experiment with tried and tested models Four new models for predicting site locations using economic cultural and environmental variables are presented here in relation to boreal forest hunter gatherers

Spatial Approaches in African Archaeology Cameron Gokee, Carla Klehm, 2023-01-01 This book explores the interplay between African archaeology and geospatial methods from three broad perspectives First several contributors examine the technical possibilities and limits of using satellite imagery to detect archaeological sites and model their physical environs A second perspective is the integration of new geospatial data and methods into site and landscape scale analyses to better address questions about social organization and subjective experience in African pasts A final perspective considers the interplay between geospatial technologies and community archaeology in Africa Recognizing that GIS and RS supersede traditional divisions in African archaeology such as different periods geographic regions and theoretical orientations the chapters aim to be widely applicable Arranged by methodological emphasis the case studies move from technical discussions of specific geospatial tools to general applications for addressing specific sociohistorical topics Each chapter clearly explains the links between their archaeological questions and analytical methods as well as how their results advance our understanding of African pasts and heritage resources Many of the chapters can serve as learning models for archaeologists who are new to GIS or curious about its applications to their work Others represent recent advances in geospatial applications of greater interest to more seasoned GIS practitioners demonstrating the potential for African scholarship to contribute to methodological innovations This book is of interest to students and researchers of African and historical archaeology and anthropology Previously published in African Archaeological Review Volume 37 issue 1 March 2020 A Predictive Model of Paleo-Indian Subsistence and Settlement Frank J.
