Firewalking and Religious Healing Loring M. Danforth, 2016-09-29 If the Saint calls you if you have an open road then you don't feel the fire as if it were your enemy says one of the participants in the Anastenaria This compelling work evokes and contrasts two forms of firewalking and religious healing first the Anastenaria a northern Greek ritual in which people who are possessed by Saint Constantine dance dramatically over red hot coals and second American firewalking one of the more spectacular activities of New Age psychology Loring Danforth not only analyzes these rituals in light of the most recent work in medical and symbolic anthropology but also describes in detail the lives of individual firewalkers involving the reader personally in their experiences he views ritual therapy as a process of transformation and empowerment through which people are metaphorically moved from a state of illness to a state of health Danforth shows that the Anastenaria and the songs accompanying it allow people to express and resolve conflict laden family relationships that may lead to certain kinds of illnesses He also demonstrates how women use the ritual to gain a sense of power and control over their lives without actually challenging the ideology of male dominance that pervades Greek culture Comparing the Anastenaria with American firewalking Danforth includes a gripping account of his own participation in a firewalk in rural Maine Finally he examines the place of anthropology in a postmodern world in which the boundaries between cultures are becoming increasingly blurred

Developing Urban Entertainment Centers Michael D. Beyard, 1998 The Economy of Green Cities Richard Simpson, Monika Zimmermann, 2012-11-06 This volume bridges the gap between the global promotion of the Green Economy and the manifestation of this new development strategy at the urban level Green cities are an imperative solution not only in meeting global environmental challenges but also in helping to ensure socio economic prosperity at the local level A Green and Just Recovery from COVID-19? Kyla Tienhaara, Tom Moerenhout, Vanessa Corkal, Joachim Roth, Hannah Ascough, Jessica Herrera Betancur, Samantha Hussman, Jessica Oliver, Kabir Shahani, Tianna Tischbein, 2023-11-08 Stimulus spending to address the economic crisis brought on by the COVID 19 pandemic has the potential to either facilitate the transition away from fossil energy or to lock in carbon intensive technologies and infrastructure for decades to come Whether they are focused on green sectors or not stimulus measures can alleviate or reinforce socio economic inequality This Element delves into the data in the Energy Policy Tracker to assess the extent to which energy policies adopted during the pandemic will expedite decarbonization and explores whether governments address inequities through policies targeted to disadvantaged marginalized and underserved individuals and communities The overall finding is that the recovery has not been sufficiently green or just Nevertheless a small number of policies aim to advance distributive justice and provide potential models for policymakers as they continue to attempt to build back better This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core Body & Soul Jim Maxwell, 2000 Millions have already discovered the physical benefits of America's most inexpensive and convenient exercise Now author James Maxwell shares that walking is good for more than just your
