Plundering Africa's Past:

Plundering Africa's Past Peter Ridgway Schmidt, Roderick J. McIntosh, 1996 The conclusion discusses specific steps that could be taken to halt the plunder      Safeguarding Africa's Archaeological Past Niall Finneran, 2005 Selected papers from a workshop held at the School of Oriental and African Studies University of London 2001 Cambridge Monographs in African Archaeology 65 Series Editors John Alexander and Laurence Smith      Collecting and Provenance Jane Milosch, Nick Pearce, 2019-10-28 The study of provenance the history of the creation and ownership of an artefact work of art or specimen provides insights into the history of taste and collecting illuminating the social economic and historic trends in which an object was created and collected It is as much a history of people as it is of objects and its study often reveals intricate networks of relationships patterns of activity and motivations This book promotes the study of the history of collecting and collections in all their variety through the lens of provenance and explores the subject as a cross disciplinary activity Perhaps for the first time in a publication it draws on expertise ranging from art history and anthropology to natural history and law looking at periods from antiquity through the 18th century and the Holocaust era to the present and materials from Europe and the Americas to China and the Pacific The issues raised are wide ranging touching on aspects of authenticity cultural meaning and material transformation and economic and commercial drivers as well as collector and object biography The book fills a gap in the study of collecting and provenance taking the subject holistically and from multiple standpoints better to reflect the widening interest in provenance from a range of disciplinary perspectives This book will be a service to the field from established scholars and museum professionals to students of collecting history cultural heritage and museum studies      Art and Cultural Heritage Barbara T. Hoffman, 2006 Art and Cultural Heritage is appropriately but not solely about national and international law respecting cultural heritage It is a bubbling cauldron of law mixed with ethics philosophy politics and working principles looking at how cultural heritage law policy and practice should be sculpted from the past as the present becomes the future Art and cultural heritage are two pillars on which a society builds its identity its values its sense of community and the individual The authors explore these demanding concerns untangle basic values and look critically at the conflicts and contradictions in existing art and cultural heritage law and policy in its diverse sectors The rich and provocative contributions collectively provide a reasoned discussion of the issues from a multiplicity of views to permit the reader to understand the theoretical and philosophical underpinnings of the cultural heritage debate      Researching Africa's Past Peter Mitchell, Anne Haour, John Henry Hobart, 2003 These seventeen papers were presented at a conference on African archaeology held at St Hugh's College Oxford in April 2002 The topics span nineteen countries from Morocco in the far northwest of the continent to Lesotho Madagascar and South Africa in the south from Mauritania in the west to Ethiopia and Kenya in the east Together they show the strength of research in African archaeology being undertaken at the present time by British based academics and the relevance of Africa to a whole range of archaeological debates including early hominid evolution and the recent appearance and expansion of our own species palaeoenvironmental reconstruction the early development of food production the development of metallurgy the formation of complex societies and the sociopolitical impacts of long distance trade Postcolonial Archaeologies in Africa Peter R. Schmidt, 2009-09-23 Postcolonial Archaeologies in Africa features some of the foremost archaeologists from Africa and the United States and presents cutting edge proposals for how archaeology in Africa today can be made more relevant to the needs of local communities Journal of Environment and Culture ,2005 Museums & History in West Africa E. N. Arinze, 2000 The contributors to this volume examine the problems of museums being perceived as warehouses for exotic objects presented in an historic way rather than as research related centres that are capable of developing and communicating with their public through exhibitions and outreach Published in association with The West African Museums Programme and the International African Institute North America Smithsonian Institution Press Africa Today ,1999
