Seven Discourses on Art Henry Morley, 2017-06-12

INTRODUCTION It is a happy memory that associates the foundation of our Royal Academy with the delivery of these inaugural discourses by Sir Joshua Reynolds on the opening of the schools and at the first annual meetings for the distribution of its prizes They laid down principles of art from the point of view of a man of genius who had made his power felt and with the clear good sense which is the foundation of all work that looks upward and may hope to live The truths here expressed concerning Art may with slight adjustment of the way of thought be applied to Literature or to any exercise of the best powers of mind for shaping the delights that raise us to the larger sense of life In his separation of the utterance of whole truths from insistence upon accidents of detail Reynolds was right because he guarded the expression of his view with careful definitions of its limits In the same way Boileau was right as a critic of Literature in demanding everywhere good sense in condemning the paste brilliants of a style then in decay and fixing attention upon the masterly simplicity of Roman poets in the time of Augustus Critics by rule of thumb reduced the principles clearly defined by Boileau to a dull convention against which there came in course of time a strong reaction In like manner the teaching of Reynolds was applied by dull men to much vague and conventional generalisation in the name of dignity Nevertheless Reynolds taught essential truths of Art The principles laid down by him will never fail to give strength to the right artist or true guidance towards the appreciation of good art though here and there we may not wholly assent to some passing application of them where the difference may be great between a fashion of thought in his time and in ours A righteous enforcement of exact truth in our day has led many into a readiness to appreciate more really the minute imitation of a satin dress or a red herring than the noblest figure in the best of Raffaele's cartoons Much good should come of the diffusion of this wise little book Joshua Reynolds was born on the 15th of July 1723 the son of a clergyman and schoolmaster at Plympton in Devonshire His bent for Art was clear and strong from his childhood In 1741 at the age of nineteen he began study and studied for two years in London under Thomas Hudson a successful portrait painter Then he went back to Devonshire and painted portraits aided for some time in his education by attention to the work of William Gandy of Exeter When twenty six years old in May 1749 Reynolds was taken away by Captain Keppel to the Mediterranean and brought into contact with the works of the great painters of Italy He stayed two years in Rome and in accordance with the principles afterwards laid down in these lectures he refused when in Rome commissions for copying and gave his mind to minute observation of the art of the great masters by whose works he was surrounded He spent two months in Florence six weeks in Venice a few days in Bologna and Parma If he said I had never seen any of the fine works of Correggio I should never perhaps have remarked in Nature the expression which I find in one of his pieces or if I had remarked it I might have thought it too difficult or perhaps impossible to execute In 1753 Reynolds came back to England and stayed three months in Devonshire before setting up a studio in London in St

Discourses on Art Sir Joshua Reynolds, Robert R. Wark, Paul Mellon Centre for Studies in British Art, 1975 The Discourses on Art of Sir Joshua Reynolds form one of the most eloquent literary documents in the history of European art Composed as lectures to the students at the Royal Academy in the late eighteenth century they both summarize the art theory of the previous three hundred years and point towards attitudes prevalent in the nineteenth century Reynolds general topic is the education of the artist He is concerned with the essentials of the problem the purpose of art the nature of the creative process and the artist's relation to tradition He treats these questions with a breadth and clarity that won the immediate admiration of his contemporaries and have continued to hold the attention of readers ever since No other body of art criticism by an Englishman has enjoyed such sustained respect This standard edition of the Discourses is now reissued in a new format and with improved illustrations It has long been recognized as a fundamental text for the study of eighteenth century English painting and this edition is generally considered to be the definitive one Seven Discourses on Art Sir Joshua Reynolds, 2020-04-14 Gentlemen An academy in which the polite arts may be regularly cultivated is at last opened among us by royal munificence This must appear an event in the highest degree interesting not only to the artists but to the whole nation It is indeed difficult to give any other reason why an Empire like that of Britain should so long have wanted an ornament so suitable to its greatness than that slow progression of things which naturally makes elegance and refinement the last effect of opulence and power An institution like this has often been recommended upon considerations merely mercantile But an academy founded upon such principles can never effect even its own narrow purposes If it has an origin no higher no taste can ever be formed in it which can be useful even in manufactures but if the higher arts of design flourish these inferior ends will be answered of course We are happy in having a prince who has conceived the design of such an institution according to its true dignity and promotes the arts as the head of a great a learned a polite and a commercial nation and I can now congratulate you gentlemen on the accomplishment of your long and ardent wishes The numberless and ineffectual consultations that I have had with many in this assembly to form plans and concert schemes for an academy afford a sufficient proof of the impossibility of succeeding but by the influence of Majesty But there have perhaps been times when even the influence of Majesty would have been ineffectual and it is pleasing to reflect that we are thus embodied when every circumstance seems to concur from which honour and prosperity can probably arise There are at this time a greater number of excellent artists than were ever known before at one period in this nation there is a general desire among our nobility to be distinguished as lovers and judges of the arts there is a greater superfluity of wealth among the people to reward the professors and above all we are patronised by a monarch who knowing the value of science and of elegance thinks every art worthy of his notice that tends to soften and humanise the mind Seven Discourses on Art Reynolds
