Rifleman A Novel:

The Rifleman's Rifle Roger C. Rule, 2009-07 Transnational Politics in the Post-9/11 Novel Joseph Conte, 2019-11-22

Transnational Politics in the Post 9 11 Novel suggests that literature after September 11 2001 reflects the shift from bilateral nation state politics to the multilateralism of transnational politics While much of the criticism regarding novels of 9 11 tends to approach these works through theories of personal and collective trauma this book argues for the evolution of a post 9 11 novel that pursues a transversal approach to global conflicts that are unlikely to be resolved without diverse peoples willing to set aside sectarian interests These novels embrace not only American writers such as Don DeLillo Dave Eggers Ken Kalfus Thomas Pynchon and Amy Waldman but also the countervailing perspectives of global novelists such as J M Coetzee Orhan Pamuk Mohsin Hamid and Laila Halaby These are not novels about terrorism nor do they seek comfort in the respectful cloak of national mourning Rather they are instances of the novel in terror which recognizes that everything having been changed after 9 11 only the formally inventive presentation will suffice to acknowledge the event's unrepresentability and its shock to the political order Index to the British Catalogue of Books, 1876 The English Catalogue of Books Published from January, 1835, to January, 1863, 1864 Fiction Catalog H.W. The Rifleman Christopher Sharrett, 2005 A comprehensive analysis of what many consider to be television's most intelligent western The Rifleman is perhaps the most significant and intelligent of the TV westerns from the late 1950s an era when the western was the dominant television genre With its story of a single father raising a son in 1880s New Mexico The Rifleman offered many alternatives to the conventions of the western It also embodied many of the genre's contradictions setting its ideas about domesticity and level headedness alongside the gun violence adopted by westerns as central to the settling of the West and the creation of America With its initial episodes written and directed by celebrated auteur Sam Peckinpah and the overall series produced by veteran Dick Powell and the pioneering television production team of Jules Levy Arthur Gardner and Arnold Laven The Rifleman is distinguished by its stewardship of some of the most talented minds of early television In his succinct study of this television milestone Christopher Sharrett uses television studies psychoanalytic criticism gender studies and American studies to place The Rifleman within the TV western genre and early television culture While discussing the intelligence and lasting value of this series Sharrett also challenges the reader to consider the broader role of 1950s television in shaping the consciousness of the postwar generation The Rifleman remains one of the great examples of the stalemates within American mass culture the struggle between reason and violence
