Risk Worth Taking A:

RISK David Gumbrell, 2025-02-28 39 reflections to improve your decision making in the classroom and beyond Go on You can do it Are teachers becoming ever more compliant as a profession By just quietly getting on with things there is a danger of losing that spark that attracted you to your career in the first place However if you feel empowered to take more risks to take back control of how you teach then you have the chance to reignite your passion for the job This book follows on from David Gumbrell's text LIFT arguing that when you are feeling more resilient you have the courage and confidence to take more risks You can also calculate that risk more rationally thereby making it less risky and more likely to result in success As this cycle continues you become more invigorated more inspired and thus more engaging as a teacher A beautifully written book with David's characteristic use of rich metaphors and thoughtful narrative This book will certainly help you make bolder and better decisions in the classroom and beyond Adrian Bethune Outdoor Pursuits Programming Glenda Hanna, 1991 This is an essential resource for all outdoor programming agencies and leaders Glenda Hanna examines relevant negligence law as it is applied in Canada courts of law and identifies the legally defined responsibilities of program administrators leaders and participants English Unlimited Advanced Teacher's Pack (Teacher's Book with DVD-ROM) Adrian Doff, Johanna Stirling, Sarah Ackroyd, 2011-02-24 English Unlimited is a six level A1 to C1 goals based course for adults Centred on purposeful real life objectives it prepares learners to use English independently for global communication The Teacher's Pack consists of a Teacher's Book with DVD ROM As well as clear teaching notes the Teacher's Book offers lots of extra ideas and activities to suit different classroom situations and teaching styles The DVD ROM provides a range of extra printable activities a comprehensive testing and assessment program and clear mapping of the syllabus against the CEF can do statements It also includes the videos from the Self study Pack DVD ROM for classroom use English Unlimited Advanced A and B Teacher's Pack (Teacher's Book with DVD-ROM) Adrian Doff, Johanna Stirling, Sarah Ackroyd, 2013-07-18 English Unlimited is a six level A1 to C1 goals based course for adults Centred on purposeful real life objectives it prepares learners to use English independently for global communication As well as clear teaching notes the updated Advanced A and B Teacher's Pack Teacher's Book with DVD ROM offers lots of extra ideas and activities to suit different classroom situations and teaching styles The DVD ROM provides a range of extra printable activities a comprehensive testing and assessment program extra literacy and handwriting activities for non Roman alphabet users and clear mapping of the syllabus against the CEFR can do statements It also includes the videos from the Self study Pack DVD ROM for classroom use An Anthology of Global Risk SJ Beard, Tom Hobson, 2024-09-03 This anthology brings together a diversity of key texts in the emerging field of Existential Risk Studies It serves to complement the previous volume The Era of Global Risk An Introduction to Existential Risk Studies by providing open access to original research and insights in this rapidly evolving field At its heart this book highlights the ongoing development of new academic paradigms and theories of change that have emerged from a community of researchers in and around the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk. The chapters in this book challenge received notions of human extinction and civilization collapse and seek to chart new paths towards existential security and hope. The volume curates a series of research articles including previously published and unpublished work exploring the nature and ethics of catastrophic global risk, the tools and methodologies being developed to study it, the diverse drivers that are currently pushing it to unprecedented levels of danger and the pathways and opportunities for reducing this. In each case they go beyond simplistic and reductionist accounts of risk to understand how a diverse range of factors interact to shape both catastrophic threats and our vulnerability and exposure to them and reflect on different stakeholder communities, policy mechanisms and theories of change that can help to mitigate and manage this risk. Bringing together experts from across diverse disciplines, the anthology provides an accessible survey of the current state of the art in this emerging field. The interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary nature of the cutting edge research presented here makes this volume a key resource for researchers and academics. However, the editors have also prepared introductions and research highlights that will make it accessible to an interested general audience as well. Whatever their level of experience, the volume aims to challenge readers to take on board the extent of the multiple dangers currently faced by humanity and to think critically and proactively about reducing global risk.

Our War Too Margaret Paton-Walsh, 2002 In the late 1930s a number of American women, especially those allied with various peace and isolationist groups, protested against the nation's entry into World War II. While their story is fairly well known, Margaret Paton Walsh reveals a far less familiar story of women who fervently felt that American intervention was absolutely necessary. Paton Walsh recounts how the United States became involved in the war but does so through the eyes of American women who faced it as a necessary evil. Covering the period between 1935 and 1941, she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women's organizations, informal women's networks, and even male-dominated lobbying groups. In the Great Debate over whether America should enter the war, some women favored aid to the Allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct U.S. involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a Nazi victory. Paton Walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, whose son-in-law Charles Lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman, supported the revision of the Neutrality Acts to allow the sale of arms to the Allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast. Soon other women joined this debate. Esther Brunauer of the AAUW, journalist Dorothy Thompson, and organizations like the League of Women Voters and National Women's Trade Union League broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate American aid for the Allied cause. Focusing on the conflict in Europe, Paton Walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the Lend Lease program.

for America's entry into the war but supported it nevertheless. By late 1941 the Women's Division of the Fight for Freedom Committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to Britain to keep American boys out of battle; this organization supported direct American involvement in the war as a means of stopping Nazi oppression. While most historians have focused on women's pacifism, Paton Walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs. Our War Too is a story of American women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace. It expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on American public opinion over the build up to the war.
