Rudolph,1995-01-01 In recent years the peasant household has become a central focal point of social history This is true not only because the peasant represents the major element of European society through the nineteenth century but also because many of the main issues in modern historical debate can be studied within the sphere of the peasant family This book deals with the European peasant family during the period of transformation from agrarian to industrial society the time called by some the period of protoindustrialization The essays in this volume explore some of the major issues concerning the influence of the economy society and institutions on the peasant household and conversely the influence of the peasant household on the outside world Themes dealt with include the ways in which the physical environment and the economy may make for very different family structures and even affect intra family relationships the effects of inheritance marriage and kinship strategies as well as social pressure on peasant family structure and demography the debate about changing gender roles and status the debate over the manner and effects of class formation questions of social and political agency the nature of gender and parent child relations the validity of protoindustrial theory and the role of peasants in initiating industrialization as consumers producers and as a labor force In examining these themes the essays provide both case studies and innovative analysis by preeminent international scholars in the fields of family and women s history economic history and demography

Life on the Tyne Peter D. Wright,2016-05-06 Whilst the early modern period has long been recognized as witnessing a growth in trade and consumerism the majority of studies to date have tended to focus upon London and southern England In order to provide a more balanced understanding of the dynamics at work on a national level this book explores the local economy and waterborne trades of Newcastle and the River Tyne in North East England Drawing upon a variety of primary sources including parish records probate inventories Newcastle Exchequer port books and the previously unpublished diary of an apprentice hostman none of which have been examined previously in this context the study adds significantly to our understanding of the growing community in North East England In particular it underlines the expansion of a thriving middling class with an associated culture of consumption driving a rapid increase in the import and often re export of a wide range of luxury items of food clothing and soft furnishings As the coal trade and a flourishing general trade with London and other home and overseas ports grew the book highlights the major impact upon the size and variety of work in the port and the subsequent increasing size and complexity of the water trades community and its associated business networks
