Explaining Individual Differences in Reading Susan A. Brady, David Braze, Carol A. Fowler, 2011-05-09 Research into reading development and reading disabilities has been dominated by phonologically guided theories for several decades In this volume the authors of 11 chapters report on a wide array of current research topics examining the scope limits and implications of a phonological theory The chapters are organized in four sections The first concerns the nature of the relations between script and speech that make reading possible considering how different theories of phonology may illuminate the implication of these relations for reading development and skill The second set of chapters focuses on phonological factors in reading acquisition that pertain to early language development effects of dialect the role of instruction and orthographic learning The third section identifies factors beyond the phonological that may influence success in learning to read by examining cognitive limitations that are sometimes co morbid with reading disabilities contrasting the profiles of specific language impairment and dyslexia and considering the impact of particular languages and orthographies on language acquisition Finally in the fourth section behavioral genetic and neurological methods are used to further develop explanations of reading differences and early literacy development The volume is an essential resource for researchers interested in the cognitive foundations of reading and literacy language and communication disorders or psycholinguistics and those working in reading disabilities learning disabilities special education and the teaching of reading

Learning to be Literate Margaret M Clark, 2016-03-10 Winner of the prestigious UK Literacy Association Academic Book Award for 2015 in its original edition this fully revised edition of Learning to be Literate uniquely analyses research into literacy from the

1960s through to 2015 with some surprising conclusions Margaret Clark explores the argument that young children growing up in a literate environment are forming hypotheses about the print around them including environmental print television computer games and mobile phones In a class where no child can yet read there is a wide range of understanding with regards to concepts of print and the critical features of written language While to any literate adult the relationship between spoken and written language may be obvious young children have to be helped to discover it This persuasive argument demonstrates the value of research in order to make informed policy decisions about children s literacy development Accessible and succinct Professor Clark s writing brings into sharp focus the processes involved in becoming literate The effect on practice of many recent government policies she claims run counter to these insights The key five thematic sections are backed up with case studies throughout and include Insights from Literacy Research 1960s to 1980s Young Literacy Learners how we can help them Curriculum Developments and Literacy Policies 1988 to 1997 a comparison between England and Scotland Synthetic Phonics and Literacy Learning government policy in England 2006 to 2015 Interpretations of Literacy in the Twenty first Century The Early Years Teacher's Book Leonie Abrahamson,2015-02-10 If you are an Early Years Teacher Trainee this book is written for you It will help you to successfully achieve your Early Years Teacher Status and practice with confidence This book guides you through what you need to know about Early Years Teacher Status step by step It explains how you can work to meet each of the Standards and assessment requirements The author addresses trainees common concerns about early years practice study skills and meeting EYTS requirements as well as giving many examples of the strategies that trainees found most helpful The chapters explore each aspect of every Standard and indicator with notes on theory practical tips case studies activities and suggestions for further reading This book helps you to understand all aspects of each Standard and indicator link your practice to the Standards understand the assessment requirements and how to strengthen your evidence plan and track your evidence complete your written assignments and create your portfolio with confidence develop the skills needed to take on a leadership role This book also provides support for the mentor mentee relationship and includes guidance for mentors teaching activities for tutors and support for assessors This book is a valuable resource for all those involved in EYTS and will be useful for EYTS trainees their mentors their placement tutors course lecturers EYTS assessors A Comparison of Several Methods of Teaching Reading Amy (Tobey) Russell,1965 Resources in Education ,1990-07 Frontiers in the Acquisition of Literacy Claire M. Fletcher-Flinn,2015-09-28 Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language We are not born with an innate ability to read A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols letters in print words with pre existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension cognitive systems for language Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time thus the co ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience cognitive science experimental psychology and education The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research
