Postmodernism, Postsocialism and Beyond Aleš Erjavec, 2008 The book focuses on three interrelated issues the relationship between modernism and postmodernism visuality and visual culture and the relation between the East former European socialist countries and the West as regards aesthetics globalization culture and the mechanisms of the presentation and representation of contemporary visual art In the first part the author reflects upon some of the less noticed issues of modernism and its dominant theoretical narratives regarding art its privileging of truth and its obfuscation of some segments of European art One of his central tenets is that recent postsocialist politicized postmodern visual art contradicts Peter B 1 4rger s canonical theory about the avant garde art of the previous century The art and culture discussed throughout this volume predominantly concern the visual For this reason in the second part visual culture and its uneasy relationship with art and art history are an object of reflection a topic which is then complemented with that of the embodied eye in the philosophy of Merleau Ponty Photography its relation to truth and the problematic expectation that an ontology of photography is possible or necessary is the theme of the closing chapter of this part of the book In the third part the author offers a global view on philosophy of art visual culture and the institutions that disseminate them Filozofski vestnik, 2007
