Newark Bay Confined Disposal Facility (NBCDF) [NY,NJ] ,1997 Two Terminal Archaic/Early Woodland Sites in Central Michigan Scott G. Beld,1991-01-01 This volume contains the analysis of two prehistoric sites in Gratiot County Michigan The author presents a description of the features and artifacts from both sites and discusses the possible cultural affiliation of the sites which he dates to the Terminal Archaic Early Woodland Classic Period Occupation on the Santa Cruz Flats T. Kathleen Henderson,Richard J. Martynec,1993 Analysing Data from Capacitive Floor Sensors for Human Gait Assessment Using Artificial Neural Networks Raoul Hoffmann,2023 Gait analysis is valuable in medical research and diagnosis by delivering information that helps in choosing methods of intervention and rehabilitation that are beneficial for a patient In gait laboratories cameras or IMUs are often used to gather gait patterns This thesis explores the possibility of using sensors below the floor as a gait data source These sensors measure changes in the electrical capacitance to recognise steps The construction is designed for indoor environments and is hidden under common flooring layer types Therefore it is very robust and suitable for practical use in daily clinical routine A formal framework was developed to represent the measurements considering the special characteristics of this floor sensor The data were then used as input for artificial neural networks that were applied on classification and regression tasks In a feature construction and extraction approach the spatial spread of footfalls was derived and used with a feed forward neural network Then in a feature learning approach the time series data was transformed into a local receptive field and used with a recurrent neural network Three studies were conducted for the goals to distinguish between people with low and high risk of falling to estimate age and to recognise walking challenges as an external gait intervention The combination of a robust and hidden floor sensor and machine learning opens up the prospect of future applications in health and care Advances in Threat Assessment and Their Application to Forest and Rangeland Management John M. Pye,2010 In July 2006 more than 170 researchers and managers from the United States Canada and Mexico convened in Boulder Colorado to discuss the state of the science in environmental threat assessment This two volume general technical report compiles peer reviewed papers that were among those presented during the 3 day conference Papers are organized by four broad topical sections Land Air and Water Fire and Pests Biota and are divided into syntheses and case studies Land topics include discussions of forest land conversion and soil quality as well as investigations of species responses to climate change Air and water topics include discussions of forest vulnerability to severe weather and storm damage modeling Fire topics include discussions of wildland arson and wildfire risk management as well as how people perceive wildfire risk and uncertainty Pests biota topics include discussions of risk mapping and probabilistic risk assessments as well as investigations of individual threats including the southern pine beetle and Phytophthora alni Ultimately this publication will foster exchange and collaboration between those who develop knowledge and tools for threat assessment and those who are responsible for managing forests and rangelands Homegrown
