Thyroid and Parathyroid Surgery: New and Emerging Concepts Angela Pezzolla, Antonio Ambrosi , Giovanni Docimo, Rita Laforgia, 2025-11-05 New technologies and knowledge completely changed the diagnosis and surgical approach to thyroid and parathyroid diseases in the last decades Actually the number of detected thyroid nodules has increased significantly thanks to the ultrasound accuracy In addition the management of hyperparathyroidism has similarly evolved with an increase of endocrine diseases Prompt recognition and treatment of thyroid and parathyroid disorders could have a beneficial impact on health outcomes and could reduce the economic and social burden associated with the treatment of advanced diseases The practice of surgery for thyroid disease has seen many advances over the past decade with most developments related to technologies focusing on the reduction of complications Devices developed for surgical dissection with improved hemostasis and reduced heat transfer and hence collateral tissue damage are of particular interest in thyroid surgery Laryngeal nerve injury and parathyroid gland dysfunction are complications of surgery with potentially devastating consequences and hence have been an area of focus for recent technological developments. Conventional thyroidectomy has been the standard of care but other innovative techniques have been pioneered such as a gasless endoscopic transaxillary thyroidectomy (GTET), the bilateral axillary breast approach (BABA), the behind the ear (RA) facelift approach and transoral endoscopic thyroidectomy via vestibular approach (TOETVA). The role of a multidisciplinary team which involves endocrine surgeons, endocrinologists, oncologists, nuclear radiologists and radiotherapists is essential to find the right management of those patients. The aim of this special issue is to provide a focus on new and emerging concepts about Thyroid and Parathyroid Surgery including surgical techniques with possible complications, referral centers, experience, oncological outcomes and multidisciplinary approaches. The contributions by leading experts in this field would reach this goal especially but not limited to with state of the art reviews on minimally invasive surgery or novel approaches to thyroid and parathyroid cancer. Library Journal, 2000 1001 Programming

Bowker's Complete Video Directory 2001, 2001 G.K. Hall Bibliographic Guide to Dance New York Public Library. Dance Division, 2001 Knowledge-based Systems for General Reference Work John V. Richardson, 1995. By focusing on knowledge-based systems technology, the primary purpose and goal of this book is to improve the quality of reference service rendered in libraries. Within reference service, this book examines question answering, a complex and difficult task. For those interested in the theoretical aspects of reference work, they have to look no further than the first chapter. In addition, the book features theoretical chapters on modelling the reference transaction, a chapter on the logic of ready reference work and a chapter on the appropriate criteria to apply in selecting an expert system shell. Several practical chapters focus on what KBS work has already been done in the field and evaluate nearly fifty expert system development shells so that readers can select the most appropriate shell for their domain. The subtitle of the book is applications, problems and progress in regard to expert systems in reference work. Applications are covered most clearly in chapter 8 which reviews the more than extant prototypes. Chapter 3 covers what is feasible, chapter 4 models the reference transaction and chapter 7 covers interface issues so that future applications can be more successful. Problems are covered throughout the book starting with chapter 1 which discusses the traditional emphasis on reference sources. It argues that the field needs to shift toward procedural knowledge related to work in reference departments. The chapter on expert system feasibility reveals that there are alternative ways of conceptualizing the intellectual work of an expert and of course chapter 9 directly points out limitations in extant systems. Encouraging words occur in chapter 1 about the shift to a balanced or complete paradigm for doing reference work. Similarly, the chapter on modelling is optimistic in that reference work can be modelled and systems implemented which act like human experts The final chapter tries to avoid the technological optimism inherent in many books on expert systems by identifying the near term factors which will influence the development of expert systems
