

ECOLOGICAL INTERACTIONS

Ecological Interactions Lab

Background information: Ecological interactions from the intricate web of relationships that govern the functioning and dynamics of ecosystems. Within these ecosystems, organisms constantly interact with one another and their environment, shaping the complex balance of nature. These interactions are complex, with many different types of relationships, ranging from mutualism to predation, parasitism, and competitive struggles. Understanding and studying these ecological interactions is critical for unraveling the complexity of ecosystems and predicting their responses to environmental changes.

In this lab, we delve into the fascinating world of ecological interactions, exploring the myriad ways in which organisms interact and influence one another's survival, reproduction, and distribution. By investigating these interactions, we aim to gain insight into the fundamental principles that govern the organization and functioning of ecosystems.

By immersing ourselves in these ecological interactions, we hope to gain a deeper appreciation for the intricate web of life that connects all organisms and shapes the dynamics of our planet. This lab will provide us with valuable insights into the ecological processes that underpin the stability and sustainability of natural systems, aiding in our efforts to conserve and manage these precious ecosystems in an ever-changing world.

Materials:

- 1 bowl of M&M's (one per student)
- 3 plastic cups (one per student)
- 3 stacks of note cards (one per student)

Directions: Each person in your group represents a different species (Species A, Species B, and Species C). For each round, you will read instructions from your designated note card about how your species can survive the round. Do not let anyone else see the instructions on your card or else they will have a better chance of "beating you." Put the bowl of M&M's in the center of your group. You will use it to select the M&M's you need to survive during the shortest time and place them into your cup. There are M&M's in someone else's cup who are not allowed to touch it.

Rounds 1 - 3 will last one minute; Round 4 will last 2 minutes. At the end of the round, count how many M&M's you got into your cup. You will record your group's numbers in the data table, and then identify what ecological interaction your group had. Then, put that M&M's back into the community bowl. You will get new instructions each round that the next round.

Round 1
	Species A	Species B	Species C
Number of M&M's in the cup
Did this species collect enough food to survive the round?

1. Which ecological interaction(s)...

- a. Species A and Species B moved (predation / parasitism / competition / commensalism / none)
- b. Species A and Species C moved
(predation / parasitism / competition / commensalism / none)
- c. Species B and Species C moved
(predation / parasitism / competition / commensalism / none)

Cordier, Nicolas Debarsy, Cem Ertur, 2017-11-06 Since human activities are embedded in interactions they are at the very center of the modeling of any form of social life shaping societies groups and interpersonal relationships All theories of social cognitive and cultural life are thus associated with explicit or tacit models of the nature of interactions and relations This book proposes a multifaceted exploration of the complex nature of interactions and of the modeling of complex interactional systems It shows that all disciplines can be enriched by exploring alternative paradigms in the modeling of interactions and that if discipline bound studies tend to underestimate the multi dimensional nature of interactions ignoring it is not an option
It will be of great interest for anyone involved in disciplines such as economics geography linguistics communication studies
