Science And Mythology In The Making Of Defence Policy:

Science and Mythology in the Making of Defence Policy Margaret Blunden, Owen Greene, 1989 Nine contributions analyze defence decision making in theory and the effects of the state of technology and political priorities Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Scientific Advisers and American Defense Policy Kevin R. Cunningham, 1991

Striving for Peace, Security, and Development of the World Joseph Rotblat, 1993 The momentous events of the past year have changed the political face of the globe the ideological struggle that dominated the world for most of this century is over erstwhile mortal enemies have become friends and partners But old attitudes have survived and modern weapons are in abundance New foci of conflict have emerged military confrontations are taking place the world is still in turmoil The welcome deep cuts in nuclear weapons have still left thousands of warheads in the arsenals and the spread of these weapons to new states would further increase the danger of a nuclear confrontation The release of the pressure pent up under oppressive regimes created a powerful drive for independence often achieved only after bloody wars Many of the new states are economically non viable poverty and famine are frequent adjuncts of independence If military conflicts are to be avoided a comprehensive strategy must be formulated to improve the standards of living in the developing countries and enhance their security A strategy is also needed to protect the environment from the effects of further industrialization and greater use of energy What is needed is a concept of a sustainable equitable and liveable world for all its inhabitants All these problems were analysed by scientists and scholars who met at a Pugwash Conference The arguments used by them and the proposed solutions are presented in this book under six themes World Peace Nuclear Disarmament Issues Arms Control Security in the Asia Pacific Region Development Strategies and World Economic Order Energy and the Environment

Abschreckung und Kriegführung Martin Kahl, 1994 The Technological and Economic Future of Nuclear Power Reinhard Haas, Lutz Mez, Amela Ajanovic, 2019-04-26 This open access book discusses the eroding economics of nuclear power for electricity generation as well as technical legal and political acceptance issues The use of nuclear power for electricity generation is still a heavily disputed issue Aside from technical risks safety issues and the unsolved problem of nuclear waste disposal the economic performance is currently a major barrier In recent years the costs have skyrocketed especially in the European countries and North America At the same time the costs of alternatives such as photovoltaics and wind power have significantly decreased Informationsdienst Wissenschaft und Frieden, 1989 Defense & Foreign Affairs Gregory R. Copley, 1989 Strategy and the Military Wolfgang Peischel, 2023-04-12 One facet of a future military science would lie in giving advice to the political leadership on the strategic orientation of the state in questions of long term security and a second facet in the scientific underpinning of military operational command Both task qualities would have to be thought of as an organic unity because the escalation chain for controlling vital threats in an emergency ranges from advice on the strategic purpose to operational implementation planning to tactical implementation and frictions can only be avoided at least to a large extent if both strategic advice and operational implementation remain in one hand. Military science sees itself neither in competition nor in opposition to security policy research but as its necessary dialectical complement. However, in order to be able to make a substantial contribution to such an overall national synthesis, an institutionalised military science is required that qualitatively equals the standard at a university and thus enjoys the same academic recognition as the civilian disciplines. A future military science can only provide the indispensable and unsubstitutable benefit for the security of society if it starts from an understanding of strategy that is based on long-term purpose and not on the short to medium-term implementation of already predetermined decisions. It develops its strategic advisory contribution on the basis of a specifically military assessment logic derived from abstracted leadership principles i.e. developed from military leadership practice. The added value of this propaedeutic approach lies in demonstrating that the military can provide the above benefit given a certain understanding of strategy and a corresponding thematic and structural orientation of military science. This propaedeutic introduction is intended as an offer aimed at students of military science or civil security studies and at future strategic decision makers or decision preparers from the military, political, private sector, corporate leadership and operational organisations. Proceedings of the ... Pugwash Conference on Science and World Affairs, 1993

International Affairs, 1989

Frontier Science Matthew S. Wiseman, 2024-03-26 Between 1945 and 1970 Canada's Department of National Defence sponsored scientific research into the myriad challenges of military operations in cold regions. To understand and overcome the impediments of the country's cold climate, scientists studied cold weather acclimatization, hypothermia, frostbite, and psychological morale for soldiers assigned to active duty in northern Canada. Frontier Science investigates the history of military science in northern Canada during this period of the Cold War, highlighting the consequences of government-funded research for humans and nature alike. The book reveals how, under the guise of environmental protection research, the Canadian military sprayed pesticides to clear bushed areas, used radioactive substances to investigate vector-borne diseases, pursued race-based theories of cold tolerance, and enabled wide-ranging tests of newly developed weapons and equipment. In arguing that military research in northern Canada was a product of the Cold War, Matthew S. Wiseman tackles questions of government power, scientific authority, and medical and environmental research ethics. Based on a long and deep pursuit of declassified records, archival sources, and oral testimony, Frontier Science is a fascinating new history of military approaches to the human-nature relationship. Armed Forces Journal International, 1988-08

War and Society in 20th Century France Michael Scriven, 1991 Presents a vivid picture of the various ways in which the French people experienced war, resistance, and collaboration, the colonial wars, the military and the state, the military-industrial complex, war propaganda, and literary and cultural representations of war. Challenges to New Democracies in the Balkans Slobodan G. Markovich, Eric Beckett Weaver, Vukašin Pavlović, 2004
