Economic Reform in China James A. Dorn, Wang Xi, Cato Institute, 1990-11-29 In this volume distinguished Chinese and Western scholars provide a detailed examination of the problems associated with China's transition to a market oriented system A variety of reform proposals aimed at resolving the contradictions inherent in piecemeal reform are discussed along with the chances for future liberalization These clearly written and insightful essays address the roots of China's crisis The authors focus on institutional changes necessary for a spontaneous market order and point to the close relation between economic reform and political constitutional reform Topics include the speed and degree of the transition whether ownership reform must precede price reform how inflation can be avoided steps to depoliticize economic life how to create an environment conducive to foreign trade and investment and how to institute basic constitutional change and open China to the outside world The revolutionary changes now shaking the foundations of socialism and central planning in the Soviet Union and Eastern and Central Europe are sure to have an impact on China's future Despite their seriousness the events of Tiananmen Square may constitute only a temporary detour on the road toward a private market order The essays in this volume help lay a rational framework for understanding China's present problems and for discussing the prospects for future reform

Performance-based Contracting for Health Services in Developing Countries Benjamin Loevinsohn, 2008-01-01 Despite the existence of effective interventions there are many developing countries which are not on track to achieve the Millennium Development Goals MDGs for health In many countries the delivery of health services is inadequate and one way of improving the situation is to contract with non state providers Contracting is a mechanism for a financing entity to procure a defined set of services from a non state provider Performance based contracting is a type of contracting with a clear set of objectives and indicators b systematic efforts to collect data to judge contractor performance and c some consequences for the contractor either rewards or sanctions based on performance Effective contracting for health services can be facilitated by using a systematic approach described in this toolkit that addresses key issues including how to 1 have a constructive dialogue with all stakeholders 2 define the health services in terms of what services are to be delivered where the quantity of beneficiaries to be served equity and quality of care 3 design the monitoring and evaluation to judge the performance of contractors 4 select the contractors in a fair and transparent way 5 arrange for effective contract management 6 draft the contract and bidding documents and 7 carry out the bidding process and successfully manage the contracts The toolkit also includes a review of 14 evaluated examples of contracting in developing countries which concludes that the current weight of evidence indicates that contracting improves the coverage and quality of services rapidly The six cases with controlled before and after evaluations demonstrated large impact with the median double difference follow up minus baseline in the experimental group minus follow up minus baseline in the control ranging from 9 to 26 percentage points The IMF and the World Bank at Sixty Ariel Buira, 2005-05-05 The IMF and the World Bank at Sixty presents a selection of essays prepared for the Group of Twenty Four Developing Nations G24 by some of the foremost authorities in their fields which address these challenges and suggest the need for reform in several areas These essays have one fundamental aim to improve the functioning of the global economy and to better enable developing countries to share in the prosperity of recent decades Routledge Handbook of International Education and Development Simon McGrath, Qing Gu, 2015-07-24 This timely Handbook takes stock of the range of debates that characterise the field of international education and development and suggests key aspects of a research agenda for the next period It is deliberately divergent in its approach recognising the major ideological and epistemological divides that characterise a field that draws on many traditions Leading and emergent voices from different paradigms and contexts are afforded a space to be heard and each section puts current debates in larger historical contexts The Handbook is divided in four parts and book ended by an introduction and a conclusion the latter oriented towards the implications that the volume has for future research agendas The first part explores major strands of debates about education's place in development theory The second acknowledges the disciplining of the field by the education for all movement and examines the place that learning and teaching and schools play in development Part three looks beyond schools to consider early years adult and vocational education but focuses particularly on the return to thinking about higher education's role in development The final part considers the changing but still important role that international cooperation plays in shaping education in developing countries Featuring over thirty chapters written by leading international and interdisciplinary scholars the Routledge Handbook of International Education and Development offers the first comprehensive and forward looking resource for students and scholars Mega-city Growth and the Future Roland J. Fuchs, 1994 This book examines a range of issues related to the mega city phenomenon Part one deals with the growth of mega cities and explores demographic issues labour force change in the big cities of Asia the effect of macroeconomic forces on the world city system and the relations between technology and the city In part two the discussion focuses on the economic and social consequences of mega city growth Part three looks at the crucial issue of the management of mega cities
