Private Wants Public Means An Economic Analysis Of The Desirable Scope Of:

The Encyclopedia of Public Choice Charles Rowley, Friedrich Schneider, 2004-07-06 The Encyclopedia provides a detailed and comprehensive account of the subject known as public choice. However, the title would not convey sufficiently the breadth of the Encyclopedia's contents which can be summarized better as the fruitful interchange of economics, political science, and moral philosophy on the basis of an image of man as a purposive and responsible actor who pursues his own objectives as efficiently as possible. This fruitful interchange between the fields outlined above existed during the late eighteenth century during the brief period of the Scottish Enlightenment when such great scholars as David Hume, Adam Ferguson, and Adam Smith contributed to all these fields and more. However, as intellectual specialization gradually replaced broad-based scholarship from the nineteenth century onwards, it became increasingly rare to find a scholar making major contributions to more than one. Once Alfred Marshall defined economics in neoclassical terms as a narrow positive discipline, the link between economics, political science, and moral philosophy was all but severed, and economists redefined their role into that of the humble dentist providing technical economic information as inputs to improve the performance of impartial, benevolent, and omniscient governments in their attempts to promote the public interest. This indeed was the dominant view within an economics profession that had become besotted by the economics of John Maynard Keynes and Paul Samuelson immediately following the end of the Second World War.

Interessenverbände im politischen Prozess Frank Daumann, 1999 English summary Frank Daumann analyzes the influence of interest groups on the political process. He focuses on the formation of interest groups and their internal decision-making processes and shows how their representatives use the political process to enforce these decisions. He develops an approach based on methodological individualism to explain the behavior of interest groups and analyzes the deficits of the decision-making process in democracies caused by the intervention of interest groups. After evaluating the existing plans to improve the decision-making process in democracies, Frank Daumann outlines his own suggestions for reform. German description: Interessenverbände spielen im politischen Prozess indirekter Demokratien eine massgebliche und zugleich heftig umstrittene Rolle. Einerseits werden sie aufgrund ihrer Eigenschaft als Interessenvermittler zwischen einzelnen Wählergruppen und den politischen Entscheidungsträgern als ein notwendiger Bestandteil einer pluralistischen Gesellschaftsordnung angesehen. Andererseits wird ihnen vorgeworfen, entscheidend zur Konservierung überkommener Industriestrukturen beizutragen und damit den strukturellen Wandel sowie das wirtschaftliche Wachstum zu behindern. Frank Daumann erklärt die Entstehung der innerverbandlichen Entscheidungsprozesse und das Wirken der Verbände im politischen Prozess auf der Grundlage eines individualistischen Verhaltensmodells. Anschliessend bewertet er die Ergebnisse der Einflussnahme auf die politischen Entscheidungsinstanzen aus dem Blickwinkel des normativen Individualismus. Die hierbei aufgedeckten Defizite erfordern eine Reform der Rahmenbedingungen des politischen Prozesses. Der Verfasser
