International Regimes in China Gianluca Ferraro, 2013-07-24 According to the Food and Agriculture Organization FAO of the United Nations more than 80% of world s fish stocks are fully exploited over exploited depleted or recovering from depletion Although several international agreements have promoted more responsible fisheries coastal states have usually maintained national policies that enable higher harvest levels rather than greater conservation of fish stocks and international agreements for more responsible fisheries have generally experienced a weak domestic implementation Among the major coastal fishing states China constitutes the largest fish producer and main exporter in the world and therefore presents a fascinating case study for the domestic implementation of international fisheries agreements This book investigates the degree to which China has complied with the international agreements it has signed and asks why it is failing to meet expectations Crucially it calls for greater emphasis on the political rather than technical issues involved in the implementation of international regimes In turn it examines how understanding the case of China can help us to develop solutions for improved international compliance in the future Providing an improved understanding of the implementation of international regimes alongside an in depth study of China s political system policy making and compliance this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Chinese studies international relations public policy and international law and environmental studies It will also be useful for policy makers working in the fields of environmental regulation and fisheries management

Realism Discourse and Deconstruction Jonathan Joseph, John Michael Roberts, 2004-05-05 Theories of discourse bring to realism new ideas about how knowledge develops and how representations of reality are influenced We gain an understanding of the conceptual aspect of social life and the processes by which meaning is produced This collection reflects the growing interest realist critics have shown towards forms of discourse theory and deconstruction The diverse range of contributions address such issues as the work of Derrida and deconstruction discourse theory Eurocentrism and poststructuralism What unites all of the contributions is a sense that it is essential to provide a realist alternative to the hitherto dominance of social constructionism hermeneutics and postmodernism over many of the issues discussed By developing a realist perspective the different authors attempt to embed discourse within the structured nature of the reality of the world Realism can situate language discourse and ideology within context specific or causally efficacious circumstances Realism can help to uncover issues of power representation and subjectivity and how discursive and other social practices produce real effects This can help us understand the manner in which non discursive social structures are reproduced through various forms of ideology and discourse And by knowing this we can start to address questions concerning human emancipation and how the world is to be transformed
