fisheries have generally experienced a weak domestic implementation Among the major coastal fishing states China constitutes the largest fish producer and main exporter in the world and therefore presents a fascinating case study for the domestic implementation of international fisheries agreements This book investigates the degree to which China has complied with the international agreements it has signed and asks why it is failing to meet expectations Crucially it calls for greater emphasis on the political rather than technical issues involved in the implementation of international regimes In turn it examines how understanding the case of China can help us to develop solutions for improved international compliance in the future Providing an improved understanding of the implementation of international regimes alongside an in depth study of China s political system policy making and compliance this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Chinese studies international relations public policy and international law and environmental studies It will also be useful for policy makers working in the fields of environmental regulation and fisheries management
