Vision and visual practices form a constant topic in the fiction of 19th century American female authors Based on Michel Foucault's assumption that an epistemic shift in the visual organisation of power and knowledge marks the onset of modernity and on developments in visual technology and philosophical reasoning this study explores the ways in which issues of vision are addressed by American women writers before the ostensible visual turn of the late 19th and early 20th centuries Authors such as Elizabeth Stoddard Lousia May Alcott Harriet Prescott Spofford Metta Fuller Victor and Anna Katharine Green demonstrate a fundamental concern with the epistemological social and gender implications of visual practices In their works vision is exposed as a social and cultural practice a means of power and control that structures social relations in gender class and race specific ways However these authors also explore strategies of resistance and modes of empowerment through visual practices 19th century American women writers thus anticipate concerns that became dominant around the turn of the century and provide an important tradition upon which late 19th century innovators such as Edith Wharton and Henry James could build upon The Critical Response to Raymond Chandler J. Kenneth Van Dover, 1995-02-22 In the past decade Raymond Chandler has come to be recognized as a major mid century American novelist Though an immensely popular writer of mysteries Chandler is now receiving the serious attention of scholars He is seen as a writer with a deliberate approach toward the creation of fictions that present a significant criticism of American life The essays and reviews in this volume trace the response to Chandler's work from 1944 to the present This volume traces the changing reception of Chandler's works It includes essays and reviews from 1944 to the present These pieces treat various aspects of Chandler's art such as his writing style the nature of the hard boiled detective hero the relation of Chandler to his contemporaries Los Angeles as the setting for his fiction studies of individual novels and analyses of films of Chandler's works An introductory chapter provides a context for understanding Chandler as a writer and the bibliography at the end of the volume demonstrates the growing amount of attention his novels are receiving
