Law and the Humanities Austin Sarat, Matthew Anderson, Cathrine O. Frank, 2009-10-30 Law and the Humanities An Introduction brings together a distinguished group of scholars from law schools and an array of the disciplines in the humanities Contributors come from the United States and abroad in recognition of the global reach of this field This book is at one and the same time a stock taking both of different national traditions and of the various modes and subjects of law and humanities scholarship It is also an effort to chart future directions for the field By reviewing and analyzing existing scholarship and providing thematic content and distinctive arguments it offers to its readers both a resource and a provocation Thus Law and the Humanities marks the maturation of this law and enterprise and will spur its further development

Law as Performance Julie Stone Peters, 2022 Explores the history of legal theatricality from antiquity to the eighteenth century It recovers a long tradition of jurisprudential thought about law as a form of theatre a tradition that ancient medieval early modern and later theorists transmitted across centuries continually elaborating and reworking it to suit changing conditions

The Self in the Cell Sean C. Grass, 2014-01-27 Michel Foucault's writing about the Panopticon in Discipline and Punish has dominated discussions of the prison and the novel and recent literary criticism draws heavily from Foucauldian ideas about surveillance to analyze metaphorical forms of confinement policing detection and public scrutiny and censure But real Victorian prisons and the novels that portray them have few similarities to the Panopticon Sean Grass provides a necessary alternative to Foucault by tracing the cultural history of the Victorian prison and pointing to the tangible relations between Victorian confinement and the narrative production of the self The Self in the Cell examines the ways in which separate confinement prisons with their demand for autobiographical production helped to provide an impetus and a model that guided novelists explorations of the private self in Victorian fiction
