One of the Family Brenda Macdougall, 2011-01-01 In recent years there has been growing interest in identifying the social and cultural attributes that define the Metis as both Aboriginal and a distinct people The study of Metis identity formation has also emerged as an innovative way to explore cultural encounters and change in North American history and anthropology In One of the Family Brenda Macdougall employs the concept of wahkootowin the Cree term for a worldview that privileges family and values interconnectedness to trace the emergence of a Metis community in northern Saskatchewan Wahkootowin describes how relationships in the nineteenth century were supposed to work and helps to explain how the Metis negotiated with fur trade companies and the Roman Catholic Church while nurturing a society that emphasized family obligation and responsibility This path breaking study offers a model for future research and discussion that will appeal to anyone interested in the history of the fur trade or Metis culture and identity

Indigenous War Painting of the Plains Arni Brownstone, 2024-07-23 In the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries the Indigenous peoples of the Great Plains practiced an archival art narrating war exploits in large scale paintings executed on animal hide robes shirts tipi covers and tipi liners Essentially autobiographical the paintings were worn and lived in by the men whose war exploits they portrayed and were made to be read by the public at large Executed in a pictorial narrative style and documenting actual events these paintings blend visual art and history Indigenous War Painting of the Plains is the first comprehensive look at this important North American art form covering the full corpus of war paintings from fourteen tribes across the plains Two impediments have previously made such a book impractical photography alone falls short of rendering war paintings for the printed page and only about half of the surviving works have reliable documentation on their cultural origins Arni Brownstone surmounts these difficulties by producing precise electronic redrawings and by using well documented paintings to inform poorly documented examples bolstered by a careful examination of collection histories Featuring some 300 photographs and electronic redrawings the book focuses on 83 paintings organized into four chapters covering the paintings of tribes associated with a specific geographical sphere of artistic influence Four appendixes feature paintings combined with translations by Indigenous collaborators who had intimate knowledge of the depicted events Offering vivid access to the key works of war painting preserved in 37 museums throughout North America and Europe Indigenous War Painting of the Plains illuminates distinctions between painting styles of different tribes reveals how they influenced one another and changed over time and conveys a deep understanding of how war painting developed in relation to profound social changes in Plains Indian cultures

Colonization of Unfamiliar Landscapes Marcy Rockman, James Steele, 2003 A series of case studies examines the archaeological evidence for and interpretations of landscape learning from the movement of the first pre modern humans into Europe to the English colonists at Jamestown

The Laird of Fort William Irene Ternier Gordon, 2013 High finance wilderness adventures violence and questionable legal tactics all played important roles in the history of the North West Company William McGillivray head of the company from 1804 until 1821 was arguably the most powerful businessman in Canada in the early nineteenth century William McGillivray emigrated from the Scottish Highlands to work for his uncle Simon McTavish when he was twenty years old and became head of the NWC in 1804 upon McTavish's death The period from 1805 to 1814 was a time of quick expansion and great prosperity for the company however its decline was even more rapid It could be argued that the NWC did not merge with the Hudson's Bay Company in 1821 but rather was swallowed up by it By the time William died in 1825 the McGillivray family had been forced into bankruptcy Set against the background of the history and legacy of the NWC this engaging biography tells McGillivray's complete story from his early years in Scotland immigration to Canada and fur trading successes to his eventual downfall

Lines Drawn upon the Water Karl S. Hele, 2008-09-30 The First Nations who have lived in the Great Lakes watershed have been strongly influenced by the imposition of colonial and national boundaries there The essays in Lines Drawn upon the Water examine the impact of the Canadian American border on communities with reference to national efforts to enforce the boundary and the determination of local groups to pursue their interests and define themselves Although both governments regard the border as clearly defined local communities continue to contest the artificial divisions imposed by the international boundary and define spatial and human relationships in the borderlands in their own terms The debate is often cast in terms of Canada's failure to recognize the 1794 Jay Treaty's confirmation of Native rights to transport goods into Canada but ultimately the issue concerns the larger struggle of First Nations to force recognition of their people's rights to move freely across the border in search of economic and social independence
