Prehistory In The Pacific Islands:

Prehistory in the Pacific Islands John Terrell, 1986 How asks John Terrell in this richly illustrated and original book can we best account for the remarkable diversity of the Pacific Islanders in biology language and custom Traditionally scholars have recognized a simple racial division between Polynesians Micronesians Melanesians Australians and South east Asians peoples allegedly differing in physical appearance temperament achievements and perhaps even intelligence Terrell shows that such simple divisions do not fit the known facts and provide little more than a crude static picture of human diversity Prehistory in the Pacific Islands John Terrell, 1999

The Prehistoric Exploration and Colonisation of the Pacific Geoffrey Irwin, 1992 The exploration and colonisation of the Pacific is a remarkable episode of human prehistory Early sea going explorers had no prior knowledge of Pacific geography no documents to record their route no metal no instruments for measuring time and none for exploration Forty years of modern archaeology experimental voyages in rafts and computer simulations of voyages have produced an enormous range of literature on this controversial and mysterious subject This book represents a major advance in knowledge of the settlement of the Pacific by suggesting that exploration was rapid and purposeful undertaken systematically and that navigation methods progressively improved Using an innovative model to establish a detailed theory of navigation Geoffrey Irwin claims that rather than sailing randomly downwind in search of the unknown Pacific Islanders expanded settlement by the cautious strategy of exploring upwind so as to ease their safe return The author has tested this hypothesis against the chronological data from archaeological investigation with a computer simulation of demographic and exploration patterns and by sailing throughout the region himself
