

PERSPECTIVE

Different people can “see” things differently. Therefore, they might not have the same viewpoints in regards to certain situations and issues.

Two people or characters may have different perspectives.

Jonah didn't study for a test. He feels like the test is too difficult.

Cassie studied for the test. She feels like the test is too easy.

A reader may have a different perspective than a book character.

Ben, a character in a book, thinks it's okay to bully another character.

As Lacey reads the book, she is disgusted by Ben's bullying behavior. She thinks bullying is wrong.

A reader may have a different perspective than the author of a book or passage.

An author wrote an article to try to convince readers that it's not safe for kids to play football.

Abe read the article, but he's not persuaded. He thinks it's possible for kids to safely play football.
