Place and Placelessness E. C. Relph, 1976 Every time Annie sees a rainbow in the sky she runs to catch it but always in vain One day she pursues a rainbow deep into a mysterious garden The Postmodern Chronotope Paul Smethurst, 2000 The Postmodern Chronotope is an innovative interdisciplinary study of the contemporary It will be of special interest to anyone interested in relations between postmodernism geography and contemporary fiction Some claim that postmodernism questions history and historical bases to culture some say it is about loss of affect loss of depth models and superficiality others claim it follows from the conditions of post industrial society and others cite commodification of place Disneyfication simulation and post tourist spectacle as evidence that postmodernism is wedded to late capitalism Whatever postmodernism is or turns out to have been it is bound up in rethinking and reworking space and time and Paul Smethurst's intervention here is to introduce the postmodern chronotope as a term through which these spatial and temporal shifts might be apprehended The postmodern chronotope constitutes a postmodern world view and postmodern way of seeing In a sense it is the natural successor to a modernist way of seeing defined through cubism montage and relativity The book is arranged as follows Part 1 is an interdisciplinary study casting a wide net across a range of cultural social and scientific activity from chaos theory to cinema from architecture to performance art from IT to tourism Part 2 offers original readings of a selection of postmodern novels including Graham Swift's Waterland and Out of this World Peter Ackroyd's Hawksmoor and First Light Alasdair Gray's Lanark J M Coetzee's Foe Marina Warner's Indigo Caryl Phillips Cambridge and Don DeLillo's The Names and Ratner's Star Place and placelessness Edward Relph, 1980 Sense of place Elmar Schenkel, 1993
