What's Next? Robert H. Giles, Robert W. Snyder, The future of journalism isn't what it used to be. As recently as the mid 1960s few would have predicted the shocks and transformations that have swept through the news business in the last three decades: the deaths of many afternoon newspapers; the emergence of television as people's primary news source; and the quicksilver combinations of cable television, VCRs and the Internet that have changed our ways of reading, seeing and listening. The essays in this volume seek to illuminate the future prospects of journalism. Mindful that grandiose predictions of the world of tomorrow tend to be the fantasies and phobias of the present, written large in the 1930s and 1940s magazines such as Scribner's, Barron's and Collier's, forecast that one day we would have an airplane in every garage, the authors of What's Next have taken a more careful view. The writers start with what they know: the trends that they see in journalism today and ask where will they take us in the foreseeable future. For some media, such as newspapers, the visible horizon is decades away. For others, particularly anything involving the Internet, responsible forecasts can look ahead only for a matter of years. Where the likely destinations of present trends are not entirely clear, the authors have tried to pose the kinds of questions that they believe people will have to address in years to come. While being mindful of the tremendous influence of technology, one must remember that computers, punditry or market share will not ordain the future of journalism. Rather, it will be determined by the sum of countless actions taken by journalists and other media professionals. These essays, with their hopes and fears, cautions and enthusiasms, questions and answers, are an effort to create the best possible future for journalism. This volume will be of interest to media professionals, academics and others with an interest in the future of journalism. Robert Giles is editor in chief of Media Studies Journal and executive director of the Media Studies Center. Formerly the editor and publisher of The Detroit News, he is the author of Newsroom Management: A Guide to Theory and Practice. Robert W. Snyder is editor of Media Studies Journal, a historian and most recently author of Transit Talk: New York's Bus and Subway Workers Tell Their Stories. He has taught at Princeton and New York universities. Glued to the Set Steven D. Stark, 1998. Call it literate fun. Ranging from the 1940s to the 1990s and focusing on 60 programs that will surprise you, Stark comments on TV history in a smart, pithy voice and reveals how, as a nation, we've moved from Lucy and Ricky to Roseanne and Dan, from Howdy Doody to Sesame Street, and what that says about us. You may think you know television, but when Steven Stark is finished pushing your buttons with fighting words and brilliant insights, you'll see what television has done to us as a nation in a whole new way. From Beaver to Roseanne, Ed Sullivan to Oprah, Monday Night Football to MTV, Stark takes us on a guided tour of the tube, providing startling revelations about the power of its sixty most important shows and events in the history of television. He catches in bright focus a hilarious, strange and compelling image of ourselves as reflected on the small screen, and he shows us, with striking logic, the awesome power of television over our future and our fate.
