Policing And The Condition Of England Memory Politics And Culture:

Policing and the Condition of England Ian Loader, Aogán Mulcahy, 2003 Citizens it is said have lost faith in the English police Opinion polls repeatedly show that trust in and respect for the police have declined precipitously from the historically high levels achieved during the golden age of the 1950s Successive decades of rising crime political violence and urban disorder miscarriages of justice and declining effectiveness have left the police in what seems like a permanent crisis of legitimation A once revered national institution has become thoroughly profane In this major new work on the relationship between English policing and culture Ian Loader and Aogán Mulcahy reassess and revise this received sociological and popular wisdom on the fate that has befallen the English police Paying close attention to the symbolic and cultural significance of the police Loader and Mulcahy document the mix of profane and sacred sensibilities that struggle with one another to determine the contours of what they call English policing culture They draw on documentary analysis of official representations of policing and oral historical research with citizens police officers former government ministers and civil servants to show that far from being demystified policing is a cultural institution that remains deeply entangled with questions of subjectivity recognition belonging and collective identity This cultural sociology of English policing sheds new light on the social changes and conflicts that have called police authority into question in the decades since 1945 and offers an important appraisal of what is at stake in the contemporary cultural politics of policing

Criminal Justice and Political Cultures Tim Newburn, 2012-12-06 As crime increasingly crosses national boundaries and international co operation takes firmer shape so the development of ideas and policy on the control of crime has become an increasingly international and transnational affair This book is concerned both with the very specific issue of policy transfer within the crime control arena and with the issues raised by a more broadly conceptualized idea of comparative policy analysis

The Future of Policing Jennifer Brown, 2013-10-08 The police service in England and Wales is facing major challenges in its financing political oversight and reorganisation of its structures Current economic conditions have created a wholly new environment whereby cost saving is permitting hitherto unthinkable changes in the style and means of delivery of policing services In the context of these proposed changes Lord Stevens formerly Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police Service was asked to chair an Independent Commission looking into the future of policing The Commission has a wide ranging remit and the papers in this book offer up to date analysis of contemporary problems from the novel perspective of developing a reform agenda to assist the Commission Bringing together contributions from both key academic thinkers and police professionals this book discusses new policing paradigms lays out a case for an evidence based practice approach and draws attention to developing areas such as terrorism public order and hate crime Policing is too important to be left to politicians as the health of a democracy may be judged by the relationship between the police and the public The aim of this book is to question and present analyses of problems offer new ideas and propose realistically achievable solutions without being so

timid as to preserve the status quo It will be of interest to both academics and students in the fields of criminology and policing studies as well as professionals in the policing service NGOs and local authority organisations Policing Tim Newburn, Jill Peay, 2012-06-22 Bringing together a range of leading social scientists and criminologists this volume explores a number of key themes raised by the work of Robert Reiner Arguably the leading policing scholar of his generation Reiner's work over some 40 years has ranged broadly in this field taking in the study of police history culture organisation elites and relationships with the media Always carefully situated within an analysis of the changing socio political circumstances of policing and crime control Robert Reiner's scholarship has been path breaking in its impact The 13 original essays in this volume are testament to Reiner's influence Although reflecting the primarily British bent within his work the essays also draw on contributors from Australia Europe South Africa and the United States to explore some of the leading debates of the moment These include but are not limited to the impact of neo liberalism on crime control and the challenges for modern social democracy police culture equality and political economy new media and the future of policing youth policing and democracy and the challenges and possibilities posed by globalisation in the fields of policing and security Criminology Chris Hale, Keith Hayward, Azrini Wahidin, Emma Wincup, 2013-06-13 Criminology is a broad ranging and stimulating introduction that is ideal for undergraduates approaching the subject for the first time Each chapter is written by an expert in their field and includes a range of learning features designed to help students engage with the material covered

Policing, Race and Racism Michael Rowe, 2004 Public inquiries into the racist murder of Stephen Lawrence in April of 1993 eventually led to the MacPherson Report of 1999 and charges of institutional racism in the British metropolitan police services This book engages the key issues emerging from the MacPherson Report discussing the failure of police to adequately recruit from minority ethnic communities the relationship between racism and broader aspects of police culture evaluations of subsequent training programs in community and race relations or policing diversity concerns that black people are over policed and the inadequacy of police response to racist violence Distributed in the US by ISBS Annotation 2004 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews.com Kölner Zeitschrift für Soziologie und Sozialpsychologie, 2004 The Great British Bobby Clive Emsley, 2009 The name Bobby comes from Sir Robert Peel who as home secretary oversaw the creation of the Metropolitan Police in 1829 In spite of his position as a national institution and his appeal as a solution to present day concerns about law and order the social history of the Bobby has rarely been explored Yet his story and since the beginning of the twentieth century it is also her story is as exciting as that of his military cousin Tommy Atkins Bobby served on the front line of what is often characterized as the war against crime He may rarely have fought in pitched battles and almost never with lethal weapons but his life could be hard and dangerous Up until the last third of the twentieth century he usually patrolled on foot in all weathers by day and more often by night The drudgery of the foot patrol fostered that other nickname Mr Plod something that may or may not have passed Enid Blyton by when she chose the name for the policeman of Noddy's

Toytown The period covered by The Great British Bobby saw massive economic social and political change in Britain The policing institution has shifted significantly in tandem from having its primary relationship directly with the decentralized local community to becoming an instrument of the central state with at the beginning of the twenty first century targets set and regulated centrally for the good of what politicians and policing professionals consider as the national community Criminological expert Clive Emsley is ideally placed to tell the story of this remarkable and iconic institution his book is nothing less than a social history of Britain over the last 180 years Social Sciences, 2003 Civil Rights and Security David Dyzenhaus, 2009 The articles in this volume focus on the appropriate relationship between rights and counterterrorism policy and form part of the surge of scholarship on security and human rights resulting from the war on terror The articles also take account of issues of security where terrorism is not a factor and reflect the attempt to rethink more generally the concept of security and its relationship to rights Desisting from Crime Michael Eugene Ezell, Lawrence E. Cohen, 2005 Michael Ezell and Lawrence Cohen address these issues by examining three large separately drawn samples of serious youthful offenders from California Each sample was tracked over a long time period and sophisticated statistical models were used to test eight empirical hypotheses drawn from three major theories of crime population heterogeneity state dependence and dual taxonomy Each of these three perspectives offers different predictions about the relationship between age and crime and the possibility of crime desistance over the life of serious chronic offenders BOOK JACKET Bar Wars Phil Hadfield, 2006 Located within a long tradition of urban ethnography this book offers analyses of social control in bars and clubs courtroom battles between local communities and the drinks industry and street level policing It is useful for those wishing to understand the governance of crime and social order in contemporary cities Constructing Victims' Rights Paul Elliott Rock, 2004 Based on extensive observation primary papers and interviews this text presents a detailed account which follows the evolution of a set of government policies implemented by New Labour that culminated in 2003 in proposals for awarding near rights to victims of crime in England and Wales Criminal Lives Barry S. Godfrey, David J. Cox, Stephen Farrall, 2007 This text examines the history of crime and uses historical data to analyse modern criminological debates Drawing on criminology history and social policy the book addresses important issues about offenders persistence in crime and questions the current theoretical framework used to explain offending patterns Prisons and Their Moral Performance Alison Liebling, Helen Arnold, 2004 Penal practices have undergone important transformations over the period from 1990 to 2003 Part of this transformation included a serious flirtation with a liberal penal project that went wrong A significant contributory factor in this unfortunate turn of events was a lack of clarity by those working in and managing prisons about important terms such as justice liberal and care and how they might apply to daily penal life Official measures of the prison service seem to lack relevance to many who live and work in prison and to their critics The author proposes that a truer test of the quality of prison life is what staff and prisoners have to say about those aspects of prison life that matter most relationships fairness order and the quality of their treatment by those above them The book attempts a detailed analysis and measurement of these dimensions in five prisons It finds significant differences between establishments in these areas of prison life and some departures from the official vision of the prison supported by the performance framework

Nationality - Wog Kester Aspden,2007 When the body of David Oluwale a rough sleeper with a criminal history and a mental illness was pulled out of the River Aire in May 1969 no one asked too many questions about his death A year and a half later rumours that the Nigerian man had been subject to a campaign of abuse from police officers led to a criminal investigation
