Howe Institute, 1991 Competitiveness is presently a popular notion in the business community but its specific meaning for policy analysis is unclear This document argues that competitiveness is about the growth in output per employed person that it is about continuously raising the real incomes of Canadians and that it is about continued structural reform of the Canadian economy It also argues that both the private sector and governments must put competitiveness on its agenda and examines this need in the context of intergovernmental fiscal relations the provision of health care and education and mechanisms for reducing the excess burden of government social regulation U.S. Hub-and-spoke Bilaterals and the Multilateral Trading System Ronald J. Wonnacott, 1990 On January 1 1989 the U S entered into a free trade agreement with Canada By 1993 it may conclude a similar agreement with Mexico and perhaps other countries in the Americas This document describes two broad possible frameworks for this emerging free trade system a plurilateral free trade agreement by n plus 1 countries in which the U S and the other n countries are trading freely and a hub and spoke trading system in which the U S as the hub in a rimless wheel has a bilateral spoke agreement with each of the other n countries The purpose of the paper is to examine the economics of the two broad options in order to clarify where trade in the Americas is headed in this threshold period in which the risk of decision by default is high Big Spenders Irene Ip, C.D.
