Programming the Future Sherryl Vint, Jonathan Alexander, 2022-11-01 From 9 11 to COVID 19 the twenty first century looks increasingly dystopian and so do its television shows Long form science fiction narratives take one step further the fears of today liberal democracy in crisis growing economic precarity the threat of terrorism and omnipresent corporate control At the same time many of these shows attempt to visualize alternatives using dystopian extrapolations to spotlight the possibility of building a better world Programming the Future examines how recent speculative television takes on the contradictions of the neoliberal order Sherryl Vint and Jonathan Alexander consider a range of popular SF narratives of the last two decades including Battlestar Galactica Watchmen Colony The Man in the High Castle The Expanse and Mr Robot They argue that science fiction television foregrounds governance as part of explaining the novel institutions and norms of its imagined futures In so doing SF shows allegorize and critique contemporary social political and economic developments helping audiences resist the naturalization of the status quo Vint and Alexander also draw on queer theory to explore the representation of family structures and their relationship to larger social structures Recasting both dystopian and utopian narratives Programming the Future shows how depictions of alternative world political struggles speak to urgent real world issues of identity belonging and social and political change

Channeling the Future Lincoln Geraghty, 2009-04-02 Though science fiction certainly existed prior to the surge of television in the 1950s the genre quickly established roots in the new medium and flourished in subsequent decades In Channeling the Future Essays on Science Fiction and Fantasy Television Lincoln Geraghty has assembled a collection of essays that focuses on the disparate visions of the past present and future offered by science fiction and fantasy television since the 1950s and that continue into the present day These essays not only shine new light on often overlooked and forgotten series but also examine the look of science fiction and fantasy television determining how iconography location and landscape special effects set design props and costumes contribute to the creation of future and alternate worlds Contributors to this volume analyze such classic programs as The Twilight Zone Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea and The Man from U N C L E as well as contemporary programs including Star Trek The Next Generation Angel Firefly Futurama and the new Battlestar Galactica These essays provide a much needed look at how science fiction television has had a significant impact on history culture and society for the last sixty years

Sexual Generations Robin Roberts, 1999 Boldly going where no one has gone before Robin Roberts forges intriguing links between feminist politics and theory and the second Star Trek series Star Trek The Next Generation

This lively discussion shows how science fiction's ability to make the familiar strange allows Star Trek to expose and comment on entrenched attitudes toward gender roles and feminist issues. By having aliens or sexually neutral beings enact female dominance or passivity, experience pregnancy or maternity or suffer rape or abortion, Star Trek provides viewers with a new perspective on these experiences and an antidote to explicit and implicit cultural biases. Roberts maintains that the relevance of Star Trek: The Next Generation to feminist issues accounts as no other factor can for the program's huge following of female fans. The incisive and innovative readings in Sexual Generations provide food for thought about how the final frontier can clarify pressing questions of our own space and time. "Infinite Diversity in Infinite Combinations" Katja Kanzler, 2004. Since its first appearance on the small screen in 1966, the multimedia franchise Star Trek has attracted an unprecedented fan following in the U.S. and beyond. For many viewers, it has been Star Trek's ostensible representation of a multicultural utopia that fascinated them. This book seeks to elucidate the semiotics of Star Trek's popular multiculturalism. Engaging Cultural Studies and American Studies theory, the book proceeds from a discussion of Star Trek's self-fashioning as a multicultural vision to readings of its changing articulations of racial, ethnic, gender, and sexual difference and concludes with case studies of two fan communities' creative appropriations of Star Trek's promise of an egalitarian future. Filming Difference Daniel Bernardi, 2009-05-01. Addressing representation and identity in a variety of production styles and genres including experimental film and documentary, independent and mainstream film and television drama, Filming Difference poses fundamental questions about the ways in which the art and craft of filmmaking force creative people to confront stereotypes and examine their own identities while representing the complexities of their subjects. Selections range from C. A. Griffith's Del Otro Lado, Border Crossings, Disappearing Souls, and Other Transgressions and Celine Perre's Shimizu's Pain and Pleasure in the Flesh of Machiko Saito's Experimental Movies to Christopher Bradley's I Saw You Naked, Hard Acting in Gay Movies along with Kevin Sandler's interview with Paris Barclay, Yuri Makino's interview with Chris Eyre, and many other perspectives on the implications of film production, writing, producing, and acting. Technical aspects of the craft are considered as well, including how contributors to filmmaking plan and design films and episodic television that feature difference and how the tools of cinema such as cinematography and lighting influence portrayals of gender, race, and sexuality. The struggle between economic pressures and the desire to produce thought-provoking, socially conscious stories forms another core issue raised in Filming Difference. Speaking with critical rigor and creative experience, the contributors to this collection communicate the power of their media.
