In trying to understand any emerging problem health professionals question the margins of the new so called disease within the framework of their previous knowledge, experience, belief systems. The syndrome called multiple chemical sensitivity (MCS) is the latest mystery illness to challenge the medical scientific communities. The proceedings published in this special issue of TOXICOLOGY INDUSTRIAL HEALTH reflect an attempt by one organization, The Association of Occupational Environmental Clinics (AOEC), to provide a forum for its members to share their experience, learn from experts with diverse views in an intellectually challenging, honest, open environment. The workshop was timely. Activity concerning MCS has been increasing in many sectors. The workshop was convened in September 1991 to develop recommendations for a research agenda that could be pursued by governmental agencies, research institutes, the academic community, others interested in furthering the scientific understanding of MCS. Both the invited speakers and AOEC members had a diversity of views, experience, perspectives on MCS. The papers are printed here in a spirit of open inquiry with no attempt to censor non-traditional or minority views. The reader is urged to pocket any preconceived notions while reading these papers to give every author a fair hearing. When taken together, these papers will shed some light on this perplexing problem.
