Project Management Tools and Techniques Dick Billows PMP, 2018-11-06 Follow three project managers as they apply the 44 best project practices in different organizations See how they adapt them to each organization and projects of differing sizes and scales Chris Pimbock is a new project manager who works for a small rapidly growing startup Their continuing growth however is slowed by customer service problems Staff and resources are severely limited Chris has to design a project to fix the problem without busting the budget He needs to work with marketing people who are nearly hysterical over losing clients because of the customer service problems They need better systems more efficient facilities and streamlined operations Projects are fairly new to the company and the sponsors affected managers and the professional staff don't know the role they should play Management also has a problem in setting priorities and sticking to them Terrie Evans has her PMP and 5 years of experience in a medium sized Midwest public corporation Her company is also suffering from customer service problems that are causing customers to leave for smaller more agile competitors Marketing blames Operations and fingers are pointed in many other directions so blame avoidance is a major issue There is also significant money involved Terrie is already getting project change requests to add items cut from last year's budget plus other goodies Additionally everyone's favorite vendors are wrestling for advantage in the upcoming competitive bidding If that wasn't enough Terrie also has problems building her team Departments are hedging on committing to lend resources to the project Worse many of the team members see themselves as representing the interests of their home departments rather than doing actual project work Preston McCarthy is a senior project manager engagement manager for an international consulting firm He's managing a strategic project to improve customer service for a client's global operations His team is composed of technical experts from Preston's firm and the client's employees The latter are drawn from 5 countries speak 3 different languages and have starkly different cultures The client has twice tried to solve their customer service problems with solely internal teams Both efforts failed miserably without fixing the problems The top client executive will be retiring in a year and the VP's have already begun competing for the position Everyone views customer service improvement project as either a prize or a target
