Prairie The Making Of Middle America:

The Prairie and the Making of Middle America Dorothy Anne Dondore, 1926 The Prairie and Making of Middle America Dorothy Anne Dondore, 2017-07-24 Excerpt from The Prairie and Making of Middle America Four Centuries of Description This first book a unit in itself outlines the treatment of the Middle West that rich agricultural region of which the distinctive feature is the Prairie from the time of its discovery to the present day The first thing that the study should prove is that in spite of Emerson's and others' denials this section has been the subject of numerous and varied interpretations which have reflected all stages of its life It should further demonstrate the futility of facile generalization concerning the frontier since types from one section were carried over to another and since European romantic traditions shaped many border concepts The inclusion of historical source materials ordinarily neglected by the literary historian will show I believe a constant interplay between them and the imaginative treatments the latter using familiar situations and figures the former being adorned by some of the most famous creations of the romancers The survey has been carried beyond the frontier stage to reveal the continuity of tendencies and the significance for social history of the literary treatments of the prairie regardless of their aesthetic value which is in many cases relatively slight About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Prairie and the Making of Middle America Dorothy A. Davis, 1990 During the first four decades of the twentieth century prefabricated and catalogue homes grew in popularity and number Built and occupied by farmers merchants the new armies of factory workers and other lower and middle class families these are the modest homes that today line American streets Using mail order house catalogues from the time Robert Schweitzer and Michael W R Davis chart the development of catalogue houses and their variations and include floor plans for many models Students of architecture whether amateur or professional preservationists and academics will find in America's Favorite Homes a handy reference to those homes that soon will be eligible for historic designation Neuroeconomics Paul E. Phillips, Jeansok J. Kim, Daeyeol Lee, The brain is the organ of decision making and evolved to maximize the outcomes desirable for the survival and reproduction of the species Compared to the sensory and motor functions of the brain however the process of decision making is less accessible to direct experimental manipulations and hence requires more careful theoretical analyses. Indeed the principle of optimality and frequent departures of human behaviors from those predicted for optimal rational decision makers have long been studied experimentally as well as theoretically. However it is only recently that neurobiological studies of decision making started exploiting the framework previously developed in economics and psychology systematically. This cross disciplinary research program known as neuroeconomics has already been enormously successful. Increasingly neuroscientists benefit from the studies of utility theory, game theory, prospect theory and reinforcement learning theory and contribute to the refinement of such theories by providing more relevant empirical data. This Research Topic will showcase the recent advances in neuroeconomics that combine economic and behavioral analyses in neurobiological studies of value based decision making.
