Dead in Their Tracks John Annerino, 2009-02-27 It is America's killing field and the deaths keep mounting As the political debate has intensified and demonstrators have taken to the streets more and more illegal border crossers die trying to cross the desert on their way to what they hope will be a better life The Arizona border is the deadliest immigrant trail in America today For the strong and the lucky the trail ends at a pick up on an Interstate highway For far too many others it ends terribly too often violently not far from where they began Dead in Their Tracks is a first hand account of the perils associated with crossing the desert on foot John Annerino recounts his experience making that trek with four illegal immigrants and his return trips to document the struggles of those who persist in this treacherous journey In this spellbinding narrative he takes readers into the empty quarter of the Southwest to meet the migrant workers and drug runners the ranchers and Border Patrol agents who populate today's headlines Other writers have documented the deaths few have invited readers to share the experience as Annerino does His feel for the land and his knowledge of surviving in the wilderness combine to make his account every bit as harrowing as it is for the people who risk it every day and in increasing numbers Each book includes an In Memoriam card recognizing an immigrant refugee border agent local or humanitarian who has died in America's borderlands The desert may seem changeless but there are more bodies now and Annerino has revised his original text to record some of the compelling stories that have come to light since the book's first publication and has updated the photographs and written a new introduction and afterword Dead in Their Tracks is now more timely than ever and essential
