Practice Of Case Management:

Practice of Case Management David P. Moxley, 1989 The Practice of Case Management in the Human Services offers a succinct yet comprehensive guide to carrying out a case manager's responsibilities. The author explores assessment of the service needs of the client, facilitating the client's contact with the appropriate institutions and services, monitoring the quality of services provided to the client, and taking action when the client's needs are not met. He also considers the therapeutic role required when needs are not met because the problems are indigenous to the client. Providing an integrated look at practice technologies applicable to a variety of practice areas, the volume is appropriate for both preservice and inservice education in the field of human services. National Standards of Practice for Case Management Case Management Society of Australia, 2008 National Self Assessment for Case Management Practice Handbook Frieda Marfleet, Scott W. T. Trueman, 2015 The practice of case management in Australia and New Zealand has a high level of responsibility and accountability that demands a comprehensive evaluation of the case manager to rigorously assess and monitor a practitioner's professional performance and practice. This handbook is a comprehensive competency evidence-based tool for the self-evaluation and validated assessment of a practitioner's case management practice and performance. The results of the NSA supports the advancement of the case manager's practice effectiveness and awareness and informs the development of the case manager's practice skills and knowledge. Developed by the CMSA for the case management practitioner, supervisor, and agency, this one-of-its-kind publication provides the platform for the case manager to review, measure, and assess their individual professional practice and performance against the national minimum satisfactory practice level for case management within Australia and New Zealand. A subsidiary of the case management Self Assessment Framework (SAF), the NSA lists the guiding principles for each of the four national standards of practice for case management. Further, it assesses the practitioner against the required minimum satisfactory level of professional practice and evidence required to demonstrate compliance with the CMSA National Standards of Practice for Case Management and the National Code of Ethics for Case Management.
