Trevelyan, 2012-11-10 It is a rule that no Trevelyan ever sucks up either to the press or the chiefs or the right people The world has given us money enough to enable us to do what we think is right We thank it for that and ask no more of it but to be allowed to serve it G M Trevelyan The Trevelyans are unique in British social and political history a family which for several generations dedicated themselves to the service and chronicling of their country Often eccentric priggish high minded and utterly self regarding they have nonetheless left their mark on our past This engaging history dispassionately explores the lives and achievements of this unique family and the part they played in shaping the history of Great Britain From their inauspicious beginnings in a small dwelling in Cornwall to the present day some Trevelyans have been famous and distinguished others less so but for a hundred years from the mid nineteenth to the mid twentieth century family members from Lord Macaulay to G M Trevelyan contributed to both the writing and the making of history This book is primarily the tale of the five men who flourished during this period Charles Edward George Otto Charles Philips George Macaulay and Humphry Trevelyan and the clever and formidable women they married Including many vivid portraits of the most influential members of this remarkable family The Trevelyans casts light on the period of enormous social and cultural change in which they lived and examines why they chose not to simply exploit their position as landed gentry but instead to take their place at the centre of scholarship and politics      Eminent Victorians Lytton Strachey, 1925      Mrs. Humphry Ward John

Sutherland, 1991 Victorian novelist Mary Ward best known to her contemporaries as Mrs Humphry Ward was one of the most successful and complex women of the 19th and early 20th centuries Born into the powerful but patriarchal dynasty of Thomas Arnold of Rugby she lived at the center of an intellectual and cultural circle peopled by such eminent figures as Mark Pattison Thomas Huxley and Charles Darwin Her novel Robert Elsmere 1888 the first in a series of bestsellers earned her both unprecedented sums of money and the critical respect of such writers as Henry James She helped found Somerville College Oxford the University's first institution of higher education of women and helped create a number of play centers for the children of London's working poor And as the first woman reporter to enter the trenches in 1916 she wrote articles that were instrumental in bringing America into the war In Mrs Humphry Ward John Sutherland explores a goldmine of materials never before available to recapture a fascinating life one in which extraordinary achievements were often overshadowed by private misfortune Sutherland describes how Ward s parents marriage was shattered by her father s religious peregrinations an Anglican he converted to Roman Catholicism then returned to the Church of England then became a Catholic again how her own remarkable success placed considerable stress on her marriage and how all her resources both financial and emotional went to support a renegade spendthrift and disappointing son And he also sheds light on one of the great paradoxes of this accomplished woman s life that she led the fight to block woman s suffrage Throughout Sutherland writes movingly of the private life of a remarkable public figure A fascinating study of how much a woman could and could not do in the Victorian and Edwardian eras this engaging biography illuminates the intellectual climate of the late 19th century
