Preeclampsia is a pregnancy-specific multi-organ disorder and a leading cause of maternal and neonatal mortality. The pathophysiology of pregnancy-specific disorders was long unknown, but recently many new findings have been reported from the point of view of pathophysiology. Furthermore, this complication of pregnancy, especially preeclampsia, is a potent risk factor for chronic conditions such as cardiovascular disease, diabetes mellitus, kidney disease and hypertension. The book is composed of seven parts, including genetic background, pathology, pathophysiology and the latest prediction and treatment of preeclampsia. Specific basic topics such as immunological maladaptation, placental adenosine signaling and new prediction markers are also expounded by experts. Thus, it benefits not only obstetricians, pediatricians, nephrologists, diabetologists and cardiologists but also immunologists, endocrinologists, geneticists, pathologists, biologists and molecular biologists who are interested in the
