Second Century Christianity:

Christianity in the Second Century James Carleton Paget, Judith Lieu, 2017-05-15 Christianity in the Second Century seeks to show how academic study on this critical period of Christian development has undergone change over the last thirty years. It focuses on contributions from early Christian and ancient Jewish studies and ancient history, all of which have contributed to a changing scholarly landscape. Christianity in the Second Century James Carleton Paget, Judith Lieu, 2017-05-15 Christianity in the Second Century shows how academic study on this critical period of Christian development has undergone substantial change over the last thirty years. The second century is often considered to be a time during which the Christian church moved relentlessly towards forms of institutionalisation and consolidated itself against so-called heretics. However, new perspectives have been brought within recent scholarship as the period has attracted interest from a variety of disciplines including not only early Christian studies but also ancient Judaism and the wider world of the early imperial scholarship. This book seeks to reflect this changed scholarly landscape and with contributions from key figures in these recent re-evaluations it aims to enrich and stimulate further discussion. Second-century Christianity Robert McQueen Grant, 1946 Justification in the Second Century Brian J. Arnold, 2017-02-20 This book seeks to answer the following question: how did the doctrine of justification fare one hundred years after Paul's death c. AD 165? This book argues that Paul's view of justification by faith is present in the second century, a thesis that particularly challenges T. F. Torrance's long-held notion that the Apostolic Fathers abandoned this doctrine. The Doctrine of Grace in the Apostolic Fathers 1948. In the wake of Torrance's work, there has been a general consensus that the early fathers advocated works righteousness in opposition to Paul's belief that an individual is justified before God by faith alone, but second-century writings do not support this claim. Each author examined: Clement of Rome, Ignatius of Antioch, Epistle to Diognetus, Odes of Solomon, and Justin Martyr contends that faith is the only necessary prerequisite for justification, even if they do indicate the importance of virtuous living. This is the first major study on the doctrine of justification in the second century, thus filling a large lacuna in scholarship. With the copious amounts of research being conducted on justification, it is alarming that no work has been done on how the first interpreters of Paul received one of his trademark doctrines. It is assumed wrongly that the fathers were either uninterested in the doctrine or that they misunderstood the Apostle. Neither of these is the case. This book is timely in that it enters the fray of the justification debate from a neglected vantage point. Image and Reality Judith Lieu, 2003-06-01 Judith Lieu examines the rhetorical function of Jews in the early texts of the second century and seeks to acknowledge the complex nature of an issue which is too easily proclaimed Christian anti-Semitism. Death in Second-Century Christian Thought Jeremiah Mutie,2015-07-30 Death in Second Century Christian Thought explores how the meaning of death was conceptualised in this crucial period of the history of the church Through an exploration of key metaphors and other figures of speech that the early church used to talk about this fascinating and controversial topic Jeremiah Mutie argues that the church fathers selected adapted and exploited existing pagan ideas about the subject of death in order to offer a distinctively Christian view based on Biblical texts The death burial and resurrection of Jesus were critical to this development as was the Christian promise of eternal life In this erudite book Mutie shows how Christians engaged with the views of death in late antiquity coming up with their own characteristic belief in life after death

The History of Christianity Etienne Ursin Bouzique,1875

Jews and Christians in the First and Second Centuries: How to Write Their History Peter J. Tomson,Joshua J. Schwartz,2014-08-21 The papers in this volume are organized around the ambition to reboot the writing of history about Jews and Christians in the first two centuries CE Many are convinced of the need for a new perspective on this crucial period that saw both the birth of rabbinic Judaism and apostolic Christianity and their parting of ways Yet the traditional paradigm of Judaism and Christianity as being two totally different systems of life and thought still predominates in thought handbooks and programs of research and teaching As a result the sources are still being read as reflecting two separate histories one Jewish and the other Christian The contributors to the present work were invited to attempt to approach the ancient Jewish and Christian sources as belonging to one single history precisely in order to get a better view of the process that separated both communities In doing so it is necessary to pay constant attention to the common factor affecting both communities the Roman Empire Roman history and Roman archaeology should provide the basis on which to study and write the shared history of Jews and Christians and the process of their separation A basic intuition is that the series of wars between Jews and Romans between 66 and 135 CE a phenomenon unrivalled in antiquity must have played a major role in this process Thus the papers are arranged around three focal points 1 the varieties of Jewish and Christian expression in late Second Temple times 2 the socio economic military and ideological processes during the period of the revolts and 3 the post revolt Jewish and Christian identities that emerged As such the volume is part of a larger project that is to result in a source book and a history of Jews and Christians in the first and second centuries
