Pre-Columbian Archaeology Gordon Randolph Willey, 1980      Moving on in Neolithic Studies Jim Leary, Thomas Kador, 2016-02-29 Mobility is a fundamental facet of being human and should be central to archaeology Yet mobility itself and the role it plays in the production of social life is rarely considered as a subject in its own right This is particularly so with discussions of the Neolithic people where mobility is often framed as being somewhere between a sedentary existence and nomadic movements This latest collection of papers from the Neolithic Studies Group seminars examines the importance and complexities of movement and mobility whether on land or water in the Neolithic period It uses movement in its widest sense ranging from everyday mobilities the routines and rhythms of daily life to proscribed mobility such as movement in and around monuments and occasional and large scale movements and migrations around the continent and across seas Papers are roughly grouped and focus on mobility and the landscape monuments and mobility travelling by water and materials and mobility Through these themes the volume considers the movement of people ideas animals objects and information and uses a wide range of archaeological evidence from isotope analysis artefact studies lithic scatters and assemblage diversity

Ancient Road Networks and Settlement Hierarchies in the New World Charles D. Trombold, 1991-11-28 The presence of ancient road networks in the New World is a puzzle because they predate the use of wheeled transport vehicles But whatever their diverse functions may have been they remain the only tangible indication of how extinct American societies were regionally organised Contributors to this volume originally published in 1991 describe past studies of prehispanic roads in the southwestern United States Mexico Central and South America paying special attention to their significance for economic and political organisation as well as regional communication      Dwelling, Identity, and the Maya Scott R.

Hutson, 2009-11-16 Dwelling Identity and the Maya offers a new perspective on the ancient Maya that emphasizes the importance of dwelling as a social practice Contrary to contemporary notions of the self as individual and independent the identities of the ancient Maya grew from their everyday relations and interactions with other people the houses and temples they built and the objects they created exchanged cherished and left behind Using excavations of ancient Chunchucmil as a case study it investigates how Maya personhood was structured and transformed in and beyond the domestic sphere and examines the role of the past in the production of contemporary Maya identity      World Military History Bibliography

Connell,Gyles Iannone,2003-12-01 Settlement archaeology in the Maya area has focused much of its attention on the polar extremes of the settlement continuum As a result of this urban rural bias a whole range of complex rural settlements remain under explored The chapters in this volume highlight the variable quality of these middle level settlements     National Union Catalog ,1981 Includes entries for maps and atlases     Catalogue of the Library of the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology.
