Seymour Edwin Harris

Preferential Policies:

Preferential Policies Thomas Sowell,1990 Covers government mandated preferences for government designated groups with special attention to programs in India Nigeria Malaysia Sri Lanka and the United States Language Policy and Planning in Universities Anthony J. Liddicoat,2018-10-18 In a world where higher education is increasingly internationalised questions of language use and multilingualism are central to the ways in which universities function in teaching research and administration Contemporary universities find themselves in complex linguistic environments that may include national level language policies local linguistic diversity an internationalised student body increasing international collaboration in research and increased demand for the use and learning of international languages especially English The book presents a critical analysis of how universities are responding these complexities in different contexts around the world The contributions show that language issues in universities are complex and often contested as universities try to negotiate the national and the international in their work In some contexts universities language policies and the ways in which they are implemented may have a negative impact on their ways of working In other contexts however universities have embraced multilingualism in ways that have opened up new academic possibilities for staff and students Collectively the chapters show that universities language policy and planning are a work in progress and that much further work is needed for universities to achieve their language goals This book was originally published as a special issue of Current Issues in Language Planning

Ethnic Diversity and Public Policy C. Young,2016-07-27 In recent years the saliency of conflicts pitting different ethnic racial and religious groups against one another has increased dramatically The world of nation states is much more diverse than previously realized only a small number of the 185 independent countries are truly homogeneous With the end of the cold war the relative importance of ethnic conflicts as a threat to international peace and stability is far greater An international set of scholars collaborate in this volume to explore policy alternatives which can contribute towards the accommodation of cultural diversity

State Intervention and Business in China Ding Lu, Zhimin Tang, 1997. With a population of 1.2 billion and after two decades of spectacular growth, China promises to become one of the largest economic powers and consumer markets of the next century. This has made the country attractive to foreign investment. This book examines China's preferential policies.

Chinese Foreign Investment Laws and Policies Wei Jia, 1994-11-21. China is engaged in a major evolutionary economic change. Foreign direct investment (FDI) participation has been and will continue to be the driving force behind this change well into the next century. This book presents to Western business and legal communities a comprehensive picture of the prevailing Chinese foreign investment climate. More important, it provides keen insight into the ways China must move to improve its laws and policies.

Preferential Education Policies in Multi-ethnic China: National Rhetoric, Local Realities explores the cultural logic of China's preferential policy measures. Similar in premise but different in practice and philosophy to American affirmative action, the preferential policies evoke controversy on all sides: from those who see the measures as insufficient to address problems of educational disparities between ethnic groups and from those who see the measures as reverse discrimination. Yamada shows how the policy measures attempt to manage ethnic-based contradictions and appease both majority and minority populations. Daily Report, 1996. 中国日报, 1993.
