VACCINES KEEP YOU AND YOUR BABY SAFE

Getting vaccinated during pregnancy can help protect both mom and your newborn. Pregnant women may be at higher risk of suffering from vaccine preventable diseases like influenza and COVID because of the changes that are taking place in your body. Also, by receiving a whooping cough (Tdap), influenza, COVID and RSV vaccine you are able to pass on antibodies that can protect your newborn until he or she is fully vaccinated.

Public health and pregnancy experts strongly support getting vaccinated during pregnancy; groups making this recommendation include: Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG), and the American College of Nurse-Midwives.

Pregnancy is also good time to start thinking about the vaccines your baby will need once they are born. Visit our Babies & Children section to learn more about the importance of vaccinating your child according to the recommended immunization schedule.
