Prehistoric Art in Europe Nancy K. Sandars, 1995-01-01 Until around 10 000 BC art in Europe appears to have been in advance of the rest of the world and throws light on the total history of early man The great masterpieces of cave painting at Lascaux are well known and one tradition of early sculpture is from the first surprisingly classical With the shelter paintings of the Spanish Levant and the clay modelling and painted pottery of eastern Europe in the fourth and third millennia BC fresh artistic problems were tackled Later still evolved the high technical accomplishment of the metal workers and this study concludes with an account of the new departures of Celtic La Tene art of the last four centuries BC Prehistoric Art in Europe N. K. Sandars, 1968 Interpretation of prehistoric cave art in Europe Difrine Madara, 2019-11-12 Essay from the year 2019 in the subject Archaeology grade A Kenyatta University language English abstract This essay offers a critical analysis of various explanations that have been suggested for the meaning of European Paleolithic rock art Rock or cave art has been recorded in Europe Americas Africa Australia and Asia In Europe some of the recorded forms of rock art date back some 36000 years ago However archaeological findings show that it is until 18000 years ago that the European rock art flourished This period is linked to the end of the Last Glacial Maximum 22000 19000 years ago as climatic conditions began to improve i e the most critical point of the Ice Age Nonetheless Upper Paleolithic rock art disappeared during the transition period between Paleolithic Mesolithic 12000 years as Ice Age environmental conditions faded After over a century of research on cave art there still exists no consensus on the meanings of these prehistoric arts Currently the widely accepted view on interpretation of the Upper Paleolithic art is that most cave images are manifestations of Shamanic rituals mediated through visionary experience of altered states of consciousness However the question on how and why art come it being in Upper Paleolithic during the Ice Age remains largely unanswered Berghaus argued that there is no single answer to the question but rather several layers of answers highlighting the issues and relationships between art and rituals as well as behavioral social and cognitive issues within the human evolutionary environment A Comparative Study of Rock Art in Later Prehistoric Europe Richard Bradley, 2020-10-22 The Element summarises the state of knowledge about four styles of prehistoric rock art in Europe current between the late Mesolithic period and the Iron Age They are the Levantine Macroschematic and Schematic traditions in the Iberian Peninsula the Atlantic style that extended between Portugal Spain Britain and Ireland Alpine rock art and the pecked and painted images found in Fennoscandia They are interpreted in relation to the landscapes in which they were made Their production is related to monument building the decoration of portable objects trade and long distance travel burial rites and warfare A final discussion considers possible connections between these separate traditions and the changing subject matter of rock art in relation to wider developments in European prehistoric societies Prehistoric Art in Europe Nancy Katharine Sandars, 1968 *Prehistoric Art in Europe [by] N.K. Murujuga José Antonio González Zarandona,2020-01-17 A fascinating case study of the archaeological site at Murujuga Australia Located in the Dampier Archipelago of Western Australia Murujuga is the single largest archaeological site in the world It contains an estimated one million petroglyphs or rock art motifs produced by the Indigenous Australians who have historically inhabited the archipelago To date there has been no comprehensive survey of the site s petroglyphs or those who created them Since the 1960s regional mining interests have caused significant damage to this site destroying an estimated 5 to 25 percent of the petroglyphs in Murujuga Today Murujuga holds the unenviable status of being one of the most endangered archaeological sites in the world Jos Antonio Gonz lez Zarandona provides a full postcolonial analysis of Murujuga as well as a geographic and archaeological overview of the site its ethnohistory and its considerable significance to

Indigenous groups before examining the colonial mistreatment of Murujuga from the seventeenth century to the present Drawing on a range of postcolonial perspectives Zarandona reads the assaults on the rock art of Murujuga as instances of what he terms landscape iconoclasm the destruction of art and landscapes central to group identity in pursuit of ideological political and economic dominance Viewed through the lens of landscape iconoclasm the destruction of Murujuga can be understood as not only the result of economic pressures but also as a means of reinforcing through neglect abandonment fragmentation and even certain practices of heritage preservation the colonial legacy in Western Australia Murujuga provides a case study through which to examine and begin to reject archaeology s global entanglement with colonial intervention and the politics of heritage preservation
