Not a Moment Too Soon Frank Kuppner, 2024-04-25 Frank Kuppner's new eleventh book consists of three long hilarious philosophical existential sequences The Liberating Vertigo of a Final Passage of Meaning Not Quite the Greatest Story Never Told and Not Quite a False Fresh Start Either Those not quites are a keynote what might have been and what actually is the gap between being the space of the poem its ironies humour and wry heartbreak The poems in the sequences are short reminding us of his first book A Bad Day for the Sung Dynasty where short orientalising forms were first perfected 216 poems through the second sequence he interrupts himself with I have almost said enough But that's just short of the half of it Points weaved together to make myself these are the points of each poem haiku or tanka or something else the weave being uneven and richly suggestive Words fill out unexpectedly the ubiquitous Stars become Stars His subject matter is what lies beyond the window of his rented rooms The world is an erotic and philosophical minefield He is rather too fitful and feverish to relish it for what it is what it might be or even what it might have been

The Oxford Handbook of Victorian Poetry Matthew Bevis, 2013-10-31 I am inclined to think that we want new forms as well as thoughts confessed Elizabeth Barrett to Robert Browning in 1845 The Oxford Handbook of Victorian Poetry provides a closely read appreciation of the vibrancy and variety of Victorian poetic forms and attends to poems as both shaped and shaping forces The volume is divided into four main sections The first section on Form looks at a few central innovations and engagements Rhythm Beat Address Rhyme Diction Syntax and Story The second section Literary Landscapes examines the traditions and writers from classical times to the present day that influence and take their bearings from Victorian poets The third section provides Readings of twenty three poets by concentrating on particular poems or collections of poems offering focused nuanced engagements with the pleasures and challenges offered by particular styles of thinking and writing The final section The Place of Poetry conceives and explores place in a range of ways in order to situate Victorian poetry within broader contexts and discussions the places in which poems were encountered the poetic representation and embodiment of various sites and spaces the location of the Victorian alongside other territories and nationalities and debates about the place and displacement of poetry in Victorian society This Handbook is designed to be not only an essential resource for those interested in Victorian poetry and poetics but also a landmark publication provocative seminal volume that will offer a lasting contribution to future studies in the area

Beyond Identity Attila Dósa, 2009 In Beyond Identity thirteen of Scotland's best known poets reflect upon the theoretical practical and political considerations involved in the act of writing They furnish a unique guide to contemporary Scottish poetry discussing a range of issues that include nationhood education language religion landscape translation and identity John Burnside Robert Crawford Douglas Dunn Kathleen Jamie Edwin Morgan Kenneth White and others together with such noted experimentalists as Frank Kuppner Tom Leonard and Richard Price explore questions about the relationship between social economic and ecological realities and their poetic transformation These interviews are set within the altered political context that followed from the re establishment of a Scottish Parliament in 1999 and the potential of a renewed engagement with wider European culture Attila Dosa is Senior Lecturer at the Department of English at the University of Miskolc in northern Hungary
